Survivor recalls night of '71 service station slayings

Terry Evans may have been pondering his forthcoming marriage, and Karl Barranowski, having returned from Vietnam, ironically was at peace with himself.

Early one Friday morning three years ago, those thoughts and dreams ended when two .22 caliber bullets were fired at point-blank range into their heads at an all-night gas station in Walnut.

Evans, 18, and Barranowski, 21, both of Walnut, were shot to death, execution-style, during a $49 robbery at an Arco station on Valley Boulevard at Brea Canyon Road.

Later that same day, Bryan Allred, then 18, was shot twice in a similar episode at an Upland service station, but there was one difference, he lived to tell about it.

The shootings, three years ago this month, remain unsolved and law enforcement officials admit they have turned up few clues.

Evans and Barranowski's bodies were found at 1:30 a.m. Nov. 12, 1971 on the floor of the stations store room, both shot in the back of the head.

Sgt. Birl Adams, a sheriff's homicide investigator, does not rule out solving the killings, but concedes that hopes appear to be dim. He offers few details on his own investigation, which began nearly three years ago.

Authorities maintain, however, that there is a definite link between the Walnut killings and the shooting of Allred at 10 p.m. that same day.

Ballistics tests proved "without doubt" that the same gun used in the Walnut slayings was fired twice at Allred.

Upland Detective Sgt. Jerry Wolf says "the bullets came from the same gun."

"Our only hope of connecting the killers is finding the .22 caliber revolver," sheriff's Sgt. Adams declared. He admitted officers have "other physical evidence" that may or may not help, but he would not offer any details.

Adams still checks out leads in the slayings, but there haven't been any new ones, he indicated.

"Nobody knows if it was a thrill killing, or if there was resistance, or anything," he said. "We just flat don't know because of no witnesses."

"I've talked to numerous persons. Some people we checked out initially looked like possibilities, but turned out later not to be involved."

Police did broadcast a description of the possible killers, based largely on Allred's memory. Both reportedly were about 19 or 20; one had shoulder-length hair, the other had dark, short hair. They also were searching for a 1968 silver-gray Firebird or Camaro.

As Adams put it, the descriptions and other meager clues have not helped much.

He emphasizes the fact the killings were a "real tragedy." "Terry was a good kid, just trying to do a job. He had only worked at the station four days. And Karl, who also worked there, hadn't been back from Vietnam for very long. They were great kids. It wasn't like two gang members getting blown up."

Senate rules committee OKs nomination of Rockefeller

PORTION OF LOOT RECOVERED

Some $2.2 million of the $4.3 million stolen Oct. 20 from the Purolator Express Co., was recovered Thursday by police and the FBI in Chicago. The money was found under a five-inch layer of concrete in the basement of a home owned by the grandmother of one of the suspects in the theft.

Vote unanimous, now goes to full Senate; House debate continues

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Rules Committee today unanimously approved the nomination of Nelson A. Rockefeller to be vice president and declined to require him to place his vast financial holdings in a blind trust.

The committee voted 9-0 to send the nomination to the full Senate. The House Judiciary Committee meanwhile conducted its second day of hearings on the former New York governor.

Chairman Howard Cannon, D-Nev., said the Rules Committee's formal report on Rockefeller will be issued Dec. 3 — after Congress' Thanksgiving holiday recess.

Cannon predicted the nomination ultimately will be approved in both chambers, despite a furor over Rockefeller's generous loans and gifts to political friends and a controversial book which his brother financed.

The Senate committee unanimously rejected suggestions that it formally require Rockefeller to put his holdings in a blind trust or pledge never again to give money to associates. Rockefeller, however, has said he will abide voluntarily by both suggestions.

Cannon said the committee did not feel it would be "meaningful" to require Rockefeller to establish the blind trusts.

"With the tremendous wealth of the Rockefeller family," he said, "it would be very difficult to insulate their entire holdings.

"We have in this case a full disclosure. Everyone knows where his holdings are and will be able to recognize if there is any conflict of interest."

Only one Rules Committee member, Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., said he voted for the nomination with "reservations." Citing what he described as "sharp differences" with Rockefeller's liberal views, Allen said he would decide later whether to vote for the nomination on the floor.

Rockefeller told the Judiciary Committee Thursday that he will put most of his vast financial holdings in a blind trust if he is confirmed. He also admitted he has spent $20 million of his own money financing his political career because he cannot find many donors.

Big welcome for Ford in South Korea

SEOUL (UPI) — President Ford received a tumultuous, confetti-strewn welcome today from an estimated two million South Koreans and pledged there would be no reduction in U.S. military support to assure their country's independece.

Ford promised "prompt and effective assistance to repel (any) armed attack against the Republic of (South) Korea in accordance with the mutual defense treaty of 1954." He said the United States will not reduce its 38,000-man troop garrison in South Korea.

The President's pledges were contained in a joint communique which he and South Korean President Park Chung Hee issued after two hours of private talks.

Before the talks started, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger indicated Ford intended to express dissatisfaction with the Park regime's harsh treatment of dissenters. But Kissinger held out little hope Ford could bring about a change in Park's controversial domestic policies.

The communique also said Park had accepted an invitation to visit the United States, although no date was set. Park, who came to power in 1961, has been in the United States on four previous occasions.

Ford's meeting with Park at Blue House, the South Korean presidential mansion so-named for its blue-tiled roof, followed an arrival ceremony at Kimpo International Airport in which the President said: "I am here to reaffirm our friendship and give it new meaning and life."

A state dinner given by Park in the Korean Capital building completed the day's official activities.

Gunman robs Castaway as patrons eat

A lone man armed with a sawed-off shotgun robbed the Castaway restaurant in Pomona Thursday night while diners ate unaware of what was happening.

The holdup occurred shortly after 8 p.m. at the plush restaurant perched atop a hill at 1600 Ganesha Blvd.

Hostess Diane M. Collins, 26, Ontario, said the man entered, spoke to her about making reservations and then showed her the double-barrelled weapon he had hidden by carrying it behind one arm.

When the hostess told the gunman she had no money at her station, he put on a ski mask and took her with him to the bar, where he forced bartender James P. Egan, 28, Pomona, to surrender cash from the register. Then he fled. Whether he got into a car outside wasn't known.

The robber was described as a Caucasian, 20 to 30, 5 feet 6, weighing 140 pounds. He had dark hair, a mustache and sideburns and wore a dark jacket, dark trousers and a checkered shirt.

N.Y. bank lowers loan rate to 10%

NEW YORK (UPI) — First National City Bank today lowered its prime rate one quarter percentage point to 10 per cent, the lowest business loan interest since April.

A number of other banks across the nation followed suit, trimming their rates to either 10½ or 10¼ per cent. In recent weeks, Citibank's rate has consistently been one quarter percentage point lower than other major banks.

Arabs hijack jetliner, threaten to kill hostages

TUNIS (UPI) — A band of Arab terrorists hijacked a British VC10 airliner in the Persian Gulf city of Dubai today and forced it to fly to Tunis where they threatened to kill one of their 43 hostages every two hours unless Egypt releases 13 imprisoned Palestinian guerrillas.

Eight of the Palestinians held in Egypt were charged with the murder of two American and one Belgian diplomats in Khartoum but were sent to Cairo where they were reported turned over to the Palestine Liberation Organization. The other five were reported held by the PLO for an attack on a Pan American airliner which killed 32 persons in Rome last year.

The two hijackers said the countdown will start three hours after its publication through the local news agency, and expire six hours later — after the 13 Palestinians have had time to join them in Tunis. The ultimatum was given at 2:30 p.m. (8:30 a.m.EDT).

A Dutch government spokesman in The Hague said the Netherlands had received reports the terrorists also were demanding release of two Palestinians held there for hijacking and blowing up a British Airways VC10. They since have been involved in a prison mutiny.

Still another guerrilla statement said the group would execute a British hostage every 50 minutes unless the British government issued a statement "declaring its responsibility for the greatest crime in the history of humanity, which is the establishment of the Zionist entity (Israel)."

A guerrilla organization telephoned the UPI bureau in Beirut and said any delay by Egyptian authorities would mean destruction of the passengers and the plane. It called the five men heroes who "carried out the verdict of the people by killing the CIA officers in Khartoum last year."

The Khartoum victims were U.S. Ambassador Cleo A. Noel, Charge d'Affaires George C. Moore and Belgian Charge Guy Eid. The guerrillas involved were tried in Khartoum and then turned over to PLO custody in Egypt.

The hijackers seized the plane in Dubai and forced the pilot to fly first to the Libyan city of Tripoli and then to Tunis.

Sun to follow light rainfall

Clear and sunny weather is forecast for the weekend after a weak storm system passed through valley areas during the night, leaving measurable rainfall in some communities but only cloudiness and drizzles in others.

San Dimas reported .08 of an inch of rain, but Chino recorded only a trace. The weather station at the Cal Poly campus recorded .06 of an inch of rain, bringing the official season's rainfall total in Pomona to 1.21 inches.

Forecaster Wes Tuft of the National Weather Service said skies will clear today with an outlook Saturday and Sunday for fair weather. Temperatures over the weekend will be in the low 70s.

Thursday's high temperature in Pomona was 63 degrees, followed by an overnight low of 52 degrees.

L.A. bill designed to curtail smoking

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The City Council gave preliminary approval Thursday, by an 11-2 vote, to outlaw or sharply restrict smoking in elevators, theaters, food markets, hospitals and public meetings-including the council's own sessions.

The ban on smoking in the council chambers will be amended before the bill is passed next week, said the bill's author, Marvin Braude.

Instead, special smoking areas will be set aside, and the same will be required of "any room, chamber, place of meeting or public assembly where public business is being conducted and which is open to the general public."

184 wounded in deadliest attack yet

Five arrested in British pub explosions; 19 killed

BIRMINGHAN, England (UPI) — Police announced today the arrests of five men suspected of planting the Irish Republican Army bombs that killed 19 persons and wounded 184 others in two downtown pubs Thursday night in the deadliest bombing attack of five years of strife in Northern Ireland.

A wave of anti-IRA outrage swept the nation. An estimated 5,000 auto workers in this industrial city walked off their jobs or demonstrated in protests against the IRA. Many of them had lost colleagues in the blast. There were demands that the IRA be banned in Britain and that the death penalty be restored.

Police said the five suspects were seized at Heysham as they attempted to board a ferry boat bound for Belfast. They were brought to Birmingham for questioning.

Four other persons were detained for questioning but were not believed serious suspects in the planting of bombs that demolished two downtown pubs 50 yards apart within a span of two minutes.

"There was a massive explosion with bodies everywhere," said Michael Wills, one of the bloodied survivors. "The screaming and groaning of the injured was terrible."

Within hours of the attack, a gasoline bomb was hurled at a house on the grounds of a Birmingham Roman Catholic church. A brick was tossed through the window of the home of a leader of the Sinn Fein political arm of the IRA.

Police made a series of raids on houses in Irish sections of the Birmingham and Midlands areas and said "a number of persons are helping with inquiries," a term which usually means people are being held for questioning.

In London, Home Secretary Roy Jenkins said the government will introduce emergency legislation next week to guard against a repeat attack, but he rejected demands that the IRA be outlawed in Britain and that the death penalty be restored.

Repair expenses more than poor can afford

Homestead plan now looks too costly

A national homestead program to get abandoned homes into the hands of low income families may be doomed to failure from the beginning because of the problems of financing repairs.

This was one of the many problems concerning the proposed sale of abandoned homes under a homestead program discussed by the Board of Directors of the Valley Association of Cities (VAC) Thursday in Ontario, but remain unresolved.

Board members noted that it is becoming increasingly apparent that although the homes likely to be offered for sale under the program are in very poor condition, potential buyers will require approximately $10,000 over an 18-month period to substantially rehabilitate a home of negligible value.

"It isn't a program for low income families," admitted Pomona Councilman Charles Bader, board chairman.

The big question is whether a family with the ability to generate that kind of money over a short period will be willing to invest in and live in a home of such poor condition.

Many VAC board members seem skeptical.

In contrast, low income families seem to be the most logical purchasers of the properties, but in most cases would not have the credit standing necessary to borrow the $6,000 or more needed to make required repairs.

Eleanor Cohen, Claremont city councilwoman, asked whether some of the proposed $2,000 purchase price of the homes couldn't be used as a loan fund to help purchasers with the repair of the properties.

Ken Glube, legal counsel for VAC, stated that the matter would have to be researched from a legal standpoint since governmental agencies are prohibited from making loans. There are many exceptions to the rule, however, he continued.

Glube also noted that the proposed VAC ordinance on home-steading still has some "gray" areas to be resolved with the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

The federal guidelines to the public law, under which the VAC ordinance was drawn, won't be available for another six months, said Glube.

He advised the board, however, that VAC should go ahead with its consideration and adoption of the ordinance in the next two months in order to prepare for the release of homestead properties to VAC from HUD.

VAC has requested a total of 100 homes for the program, and Joe Korpsak, executive director, remains optimistic that nearly that number will be received.

In other business, the board heard a report concerning VAC's bid to become the area management broker (AMB) for abandoned homes in the West End communities.

Korpsak told the board that the VAC bid was the 10th highest among those received by HUD, but that it may be one of the three lowest "responsible" bids.

If awarded the AMB contract, VAC would become responsible for the care of abandoned homes in the West End area and getting the properties up for sale by HUD.

Korpsak reported that as of Nov. 10 there were 591 abandoned homes in the 10 VAC cities, compared to 787 last July. Since the formation of VAC, there have been 264 abandoned homes sold.

Undercover agents arrest 8 in stolen property probe

A one-month investigation of stolen property buyers or "fences" by Ontario police and San Bernardino sheriff's officers climaxed Thursday with the arrest of eight persons.

During the investigation undercover officers used a hidden video tape recorder on one of the transactions and hidden tape recorder units on the others.

The tape machines recorded the voices of the suspects talking with the undercover officer about the purchase of stolen property, authorities said.

Officers said three persons were arrested for conspiracy to sell stolen property after selling a television set that had been stolen in a burglary in Chino. They were Edward Nicholas Murphy, 22, 1395 W. Mission Blvd., Apt. C, Ontario; George Allen Ronshaufen, 21, 1122 E. La Deney Drive, Apt. C, Ontario; and John George Berberich III, 22, 720 Perris Ave., Fullerton.

Three others were arrested for receiving stolen property after they purchased stolen property from an undercover agent, officers reported. These were Fred Daniel Kirkland, 37, 1052 Airshire Lane, Pomona; and Gerald Wayne Bonnett, 51, and Delores Rose Jones, 41, both of 834 Nocta St., Ontario.

The transaction took place at Mission Upholstery, 5325 Mission Blvd., Ontario. Mission Upholstery is run by Kirkland.

Also arrested for receiving stolen property was Charles Green, 46, 604 E. Belmont St., Ontario. Green was arrested after he allegedly purchased stolen public utility wire from an undercover agent for the police. The transaction took place at a scrap yard run by Green at 919 S. Sultana Ave., Ontario.

Arrested for burglary of a residence was Leon Perry, 23, 1102 E. G St., Ontario.

All suspects were booked in the West End jail.

1,000-acre dump site gets setback from commissioners

A proposal to develop a 1,000-acre refuse disposal site in the Chino Hills received a setback Thursday when San Bernardino County Planning Commission voted 4-2 to deny a request for an amendment to the Chino Hills General Plan.

Both commissioners and area residents reported there must be a better site for such an operation and that the amenity of the area must be preserved.

The planning staff recommended the proposal be continued until the county completed its master plan of dump sites.

Official commission action won't be taken until Dec. 5 when planners vote on what master plan changes should be made for the entire county for 1974. Under a state law, only a few changes are permitted each year.

The dump site matter is scheduled to go before San Bernardino County's Board of Supervisors Dec. 17 for final action.

The county previously had entered escrow for the property which is located in Chino Hills a half mile south of the Corona Expressway near Pomona Rincon Road, and about two miles southeast of Los Serranos.

Refuse disposal officials previously said they didn't expect the site to become operational for about two years. The time is needed to receive all necessary approvals and build a road into the site.

The site is planned to serve the communities of Chino, Los Serranos, Glenmeade, Ontario and Montclair. It would serve to prolong the life of the Milliken Avenue dumpsite in Ontario, said Bobby Ingram, director of the county's refuse disposal department.

The property is proposed to be divided into two parcels, with one being used for solid waste disposals and the second reserved for disposing of cow manure from nearby dairies.

In addition, officials had designated a buffer area for recovery of some waste materials such as metals, papers and glass.

"Some time in the future, it may become economically feasible to put in a facility to process these," said Ingram.

The proposed site presently is undeveloped. It is described as having rolling hills with canyons and a few trees. The property is used for cattle grazing.

Two hitchhikers turn on driver

An Altadena man who picked up two hitchhikers in Pomona was robbed by them for his gesture early Thursday night.

Michael Lucas, 32, said he picked up the pair at Ridgeway and Campus avenues. One pulled what looked like a .45-caliber pistol and forced Lucas from the car. Then they went through his pockets, not knowing he had tossed his wallet away as he exited, and ran away cursing with his car keys.

The young men were described as Negroes, 18 to 20, 5 feet 10 and weighing about 170 pounds. Both wore blue knit watch caps, dark jackets and trousers.

A TREE BY ANY OTHER NAME . . .

Francine Anne Marconi, 25, a native of Chicago, fell in love with California when she arrived here three years ago. She claims that names have certain vibrations, but that her name doesn't. So she has filed a petition in San Francisco Superior Court to have her name changed to California Redwood Lady. The hearing has been scheduled for Dec. 20.

Order child molester to state hospital

A 36-year-old La Verne man was committed to the custody of the state Department of Mental Hygiene Thursday after being declared a mentally disordered sex offender.

The action occurred in Pomona Superior Court where Bill Clifton Brainard, 210 Park Ave., appeared before Judge Glenn M. Pfau. The judge ordered Brainard sent to Patton State Hospital in San Bernardino and that a report on the progress of his treatment there be sent to the court in six months.

Brainard, an out-of-work house painter, was arrested last summer in La Verne and charged with molesting an 8-year-old girl. The child had been left alone in the family car by her mother who was shopping at a market, at 2090 Foothill Blvd.

The defendant was found guilty last September by a Pomona Superior Court jury.

Industrial ed parley slated

"Let's Have an Affair" is the theme of an industrial and career educators conference to held Saturday at the Valley Vocation Center in Industry.

The conference will continue from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at VVC, 15359 E. Proctor Ave., Industry.

In addition, more than 50 committees in the field of industrial training will display instructional materials and equipment.

A dinner-dance at Kellogg West in Pomona will follow the afternoon ceremonies at VVC.

Relaxing heating oil allocations--FEA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Energy Administration announced today it will relax allocation of heating oil for homes and businesses but warned Americans to keep thermostats turned down "for a hard winter."

The FEA said it is substituting persuasion for requirements in the conservation of home heating fuels.

ONE HURDLE CLEARED

L.A. joins move to postpone hearing on offshore drilling

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The City Council authorized the city attorney Thursday to sue the federal government if needed to stall a hearing on leasing of offshore oil drilling sites.

The city became the 14th in Southern California to authorize legal action against the Interior Department to force postponement of the hearing, scheduled for Dec. 2-3 in Santa Monica.

California Gov.-Elect Edmund G. Brown Jr. and both California senators Thursday also demanded that the hearings be postponed.

The council acted at the request of City Attorney Burt Pines and Mayor Tom Bradley, a foe of offshore drilling who has been leading the organization of a bloc of Southern California municipal officials to oppose federal plans.

Pines said there "simply is not enough time" for local governments or the public to analyse the 1,300 page environmental impact study made for the federal government, nor the 800-page Interior Department plan for offshore drilling.

As part of "Project Independence," aimed at freeing the United States from dependence on the Aarab-dominated international oil cartel, the Interior Department is considering plans to lease drilling rights for 1.6 million acres off the coast of Southern California, and eventually for vast areas off the Central and Northern California coasts and off the state of Washington.

Opponents of offshore drilling argue that the decision to go ahead has already been made, and the hearings are being rushed through as a formality, with the drilling to be approved no matter what happens at the hearings.

Pines said that if the Interior Department does not agree to the requests by the city and other local governments to delay the hearing for at least two months, he will file suit in Washington next Tuesday.

The council approved $2,000 to hire Charles S. Rhyne, former president of the American Bar Association, as co-counsel if necessary to William Ruckelshaus, former head of the Environmental Protection Agency and deputy attorney general.

Ruckelshaus has agreed to represent the coalition of Southern California city and county governments demanding the hearing be postponed.

Judge dismisses campaign reform suit filed by Brown

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A lawsuit that brought attention to Gov.-elect Edmund G. Brown Jr. as a fighter for campaign reform was dismissed Thursday.

Brown, shortly after becoming Secretary of State in 1971, filed suit as a private citizen against a group called Californians Against the Street and Road Tax Trap, to determine the source of $95,000 in anonymous gifts to the group.

A Superior Court judge dismissed the suit, saying it was based on a law that no longer exists.

The group successfully campaigned against Proposition 18, which would have diverted gasoline tax revenue to mass transit and smog control programs.

Also named in the suit were the group's chairman, James Mussatti, Treasurer Arch R. Brookhouser and Milton J. Kramer and Associates. The suit accused them of violating the state Election Code by improperly reporting contributions.

Brown later added Standard Oil Co. of California, Mobil Oil Corp. and Gulf Oil Corp. as defendants. They allegedly failed to declare anonymous contributions of $95,000 to the group opposing Proposition 18.

Gulf settled the case against it by donating $25,000 to a University of California smog research project. Standard and Mobil later admitted their contributions, but Brown continued to prosecute.

Brown, who sought $1,000 in penalties from the antiproposition groups and oil companies for each Election Code violation, said the fines could total up to $250,000.

The suit, which was revised twice, accused the proposition's opponents of failing to list, within a reasonable amount of time, addresses of 65 contributors in two financial statements; failing to itemize expenditures; and illegally listing four separate contributions.

The contributions were listed as being anonymous, when the oil companies were known to be the donors, the suit said.

Under the old Election Code law, which was changed by the 1973 Waxman-Dymally Campaign Disclosure Act, any citizen could recover a $1,000 "finders fee" from persons violating the old code.

Service station is robbery target

A man with a rough complexion and a yellow cap with an emblem robbed the Economy Service Station at Seventh Street and Riverside Drive in Chino of a small amount of cash about 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Chino police reported.

Service station attendent James Church of Chino said the man approached him with his hand in his pocket, as if he had a weapon, and demanded the money from the cash box. Church described the robber as a Caucasian, about 30, 5 feet 9, 150 pounds, with black hair combed forward.

Forced off road and beaten, driver says

A 27-year-old Ontario man reported to police that his car was forced off the road Thursday at the intersection of Holt Boulevard and Fern Street by two drunken men who attacked him with a knife.

Benito Tallez Mara, 27, of 1811 Euclid Ave., Ontario, according to police reports, suffered a scratch on the abdomen in the attack. Mara said he was driving home when a car containing two men forced him off the road.

Mara said he began arguing with the men who appeared to be drunk, and they attacked him. He described one of the men as about 60, and the other about 20. He said he could not describe the vehicle.

Thieves grab purse; two men, youth held

Two men and a 15-year-old youth have been arrested on suspicion of robbery charges after they allegedly stole a purse from an Ontario woman coming out of a food store at Fourth Street and Grove Avenue in Ontario Thursday.

Mrs. Marian Acree told police that she was getting into her car outside of the food store when a man suddenly grabbed her purse, containing a small amount of cash, and ran. She said the man was joined by another person. Another man saw the suspects running and gave chase, managing to get the license number of the car the thieves jumped into.

A short time later three suspects, Curtis Ray Smithson, 18, of 124 Gilmore St., Upland, Paul Edward Serna, 18, of 1557 Hope St., Ontario, and the juvenile, were arrested in Upland in a vehicle.

Pentagon to eliminate 23,000

Major jobs cutback in nation's military

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon announced today it will eliminate 11,500 military and 11,600 civilian jobs in a major cutback at Army, Air Force and Defense Supply bases around the nation.

While services at many bases will be only trimmed, two large facilities will be closed entirely: Frankford Arsenal, in Philadelphia, Pa., and Ellington Air Force Base in Houston, Tex.

The base actions have been under consideration for many months but such job eliminations commonly are held up until after elections. They still unleash a furor on Capitol Hill from Congressmen whose districts are hit.

The Pentagon said the cutbacks would save $300 million a year after they are completed in 1977 and are "part of the continuing defense effort to divert resources from support and overhead activities to combat capability."

the actions announced today do not affect the 2,000 U.S. bases in 33 foreign countries, but the Pentagon said it was working on another package of overseas base cutbacks.

The last major base cutback was announced 19 months ago. It closed 40 entire bases and hit most heavily at several naval installations.

This time only Army and Air Force bases and Defense Supply Agency facilities were affected.

Although dozens of domestic bases will be touched by the move, many of those will gain employment as jobs at other bases are shuffled. For example, congressional sources said, Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, would be a major gainer as 750 civilian and 1,200 military jobs are transferred there.

Griffiss AFB, N.Y., will be a major loser, congressional sources said as 1,100 civilian and 300 military jobs are cut.

The Army will reportedly make major major personnel reductions at Savanna Army Deputy, Savanna, Ill.; Lexington Blue Grass Army Depot, Ky., and Pueblo Army Depot, Colo.

According to Congressional sources the Air Force will trim 1,350 military and 19 civilian jobs at Eglin AFB, Florida, 580 military and 22 civilian jobs at Pope AFB, North Carolina, 800 military and 300 civilian jobs at Kirtland AFB, New Mexico, and 500 military jobs each at Pease AFB, New Hampshire, and Rickenbacker AFB, Ohio.

Air Force bases gaining significant numbers include: Scott AFB, Ill.; McChord AFB, Washington and Hanscom AFB, Mass.

After the cutbacks there will still be 4,800 military installations in the United States. Many are only single buildings but about 500 are major bases.

More gloom over coal crisis; union council not satisfied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A rebellious member of the United Mine Workers bargaining council threw more gloom on the nation's growing coal crisis today, saying the council does not intend to accept a proposed three-year union contract without changes.

"We don't like it. We don't intend to accept it," said Leroy Padderson of Madisonville, Ky. He said coal company negotiators "took the britches off" union representatives in a tentative agreement reached Nov. 13.

The news conference called by Padderson indicated the nationwide strike by 120,000 soft coal miners which started Nov. 12 could continue well into December.

The bargaining council rejected a contract worked out between negotiators for the union and the soft coal producers. No new negotiations have been scheduled.

Thousands of workers in steel, coke, railroads and other related industries have already been laid off because of the coal strike and government officials predict 300,000 workers will be out of jobs by early next month —not including the miners.

The government also warned earlier that a strike of between two weeks and a month could cut electric power in rural schools, hospitals and other buildings in a number of states in addition to threatening heat and light in homes.

"Even if it means the lights are to go out, we aren't going back home," Padderson said. "I don't mind taking my share of the responsibility for a longer strike. I think it's the worst contract ever negotiated."

UMW President Arnold Miller lobbied on behalf of the contract in the West Virginia coalfields Thursday, calling it an excellent offer —one the miners "should have had 20 years ago."

But Padderson said even Miller's supporters on the council are "100 per cent against" the agreement.

"We don't like our working conditions; we don't like the wages; we don't like the safety part," he said.

House OKs mass transit measure; it goes to Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A balky Congress finally gave President Ford the mass transit bill he wanted but also forced him to accept two other measures he had vetoed.

By a surprisingly large margin, 288-109, the House approved and sent to the White House Thursday an $11.8 billion, six year program to help urban mass transit systems

In a telegram from Japan, the traveling President informed Congress he would sign the bill.

But the Senate dealt Ford two blows, overriding his vetoes on an expansion of the Freedom of Information Act, 65-27, and a vocational rehabilitation bill, 90-1.

Ford has now vetoed 13 bills, and three of the vetoes have been overriden.

Only five times in history and not since 1921 has only one senator backed the President on a veto. The lone vote against the vocational rehabilitation veto was cast by Sen. William L. Scott, R-Va.

On five other occasions —the last in 1908 —Congress has unanimously rejected a veto.

Although the Freedom of Information Act expansion now goes into effect, the $851 million rehabilitation program remains in dispute.

Ford contends he used a pocket veto on the bill, refusing to sign it while Congress was in a 30-day recess. A pocket veto cannot be overriden.

Congress argues that a 30-day break for the elections does not constitute adjournment for the purposes for a pocket veto. The Supreme Court may have to rule.

AT&T cancels $600 million plan

NEW YORK (UPI) — AT&T today cancelled plans to borrow $600 million for construction and service improvement because of uncertainty over the future of the company following the antitrust suit brought by the Ford administration.

The bond and debt program was placed on the open market last week. It was the largest private corporation debt program ever offered to the public.

Charles L. Brown, executive vice president of AT&T, said the giant communications network was withdrawing the offer because of unsettled bond market conditions following the antitrust suit brought by the Justice Department.

"We want investors to have sufficient time to consider fully this new development," Brown said.

Trading in AT&T stock was halted on the New York Stock Exchange following the announcement of cancellation of the financing program.

It was not immediately clear what AT&T planned to do about the extensive long-term construction and service improvement program it intended to finance through the sale of the $600 million in notes and debentures.

Nor was it known when, or if, AT&T planned to resubmit the offer, under which bond dealers offer the notes to the public at interest.

The legal battle between the government and AT&T is expected to drag on in the courts for 10 years, and taxpayers and telephone users will pay the legal bill.

AT&T Chairman John deButts called it an "astronomical amount which will have to be paid by the consumer."

He said he couldn't provide a precise figure on the legal costs, but attorney fees for both sides will easily run into the millions.

DeButts told a news conference Thursday that AT&T had no intention of compromising with the Justice Department, which charged the communications giant with restraining trade through monopolistic practices.

"We'll fight this one to the end," deButts said, adding that he was confident the firm would win.

The last time the Justice Department brought an antitrust suit against AT&T was in 1949.

That case was settled out of court seven years later in an agreement that forced AT&T to give up some non-communications equipment business but resulted in no major change in the company's structure.

Under the suit filed Wednesday, the government seeks to break up AT&T, the biggest and richest private company in the world, into smaller units.

The chief targets are Western Electric, Bell Laboratories and the company's long distance service.

"I think the whole thing is a ripoff of the stockholders," deButts said. "They are the ones who are going to lose if they (the government) are successful."

"I can't understand why Justice would take an action that could lead to dismemberment of the Bell System, with the inevitable result that costs would go up and service would suffer," he said.

"Anybody who says that won't be the case is just plain wrong."

AT&T, with three million shareholders, weathered the storm relatively well on the New York Stock Exchange Thursday, the first day of trading after the government lawsuit was filed.

Agnew becoming a millionaire?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Spiro Agnew, on his way to becoming a millionaire at his new job, says he's "just trying to make a living."

The former vice president has set up his own business, Pathlite, Inc., which buys and sells property.

Some of his best customers are kings and princes in the oil-rich Arab countries, according to an article in the December issue of McCall's magazine, and Agnew "could well be on the way to becoming a millionaire."

Layoffs in auto industry now total 150,000; prices on some cars lowered

DETROIT (UPI) — The troubled "Big Three" automakers handed out pink slips to white and blue collar workers Thursday, dropped prices on some slow-selling cars and raised workers' wages by $4 million a week.

The latest reductions announced by General Motors, Ford and Chrysler brought the total of those laid off to over 150,000 workers, more than half of them on long-term layoffs that may never end.

Most will recieve pay for the Christmas-New Year's holiday and up to 95 per cent of their weekly take-home pay.

In rapid succession Thursday, the industry reacted to its worst new model sales in a decade in the following ways:

—GM said 30,000 workers will be idled for one and two week periods in December as nine of its 22 U.S. car assembly plants close to cut down on inventories of unsold cars. This is in addition to 40,000 GM workers on indefinite layoffs.

—Ford confirmed 3,000 white collar workers will be dismissed at the end of the month. Sources said thousands more may be let go before Christmas. The No. 2 automaker has 10,245 workers on indefinite layoff, but is expected to cut more before Thanksgiving.

—Chrysler, with 64,200 workers already scheduled off from the day before Thanksgiving to Jan. 6, reportedly is set to trim 15,000 white collar workers from the payroll.

—Ford, which earlier this week quietly increased average prices of its cars by $75, became the first automaker to respond to slow sales by cutting the price of its subcompact two-door Pinto by $150. There also will be a $66 rebate to persons who have already purchased 1975 models.

—The spiraling cost of living increases announced by the Labor Department meant the nation's 665,000 auto workers will share in a record $4 million a week pay raise beginning Dec. 2. For workers at GM, Ford and American Motors, it means an extra 15 cents an hour in their paychecks. Chrysler workers will get their payment in a lump sum of up to $343.20 in March.

—United Auto Workers Vice President Douglas A. Fraser said it would take at least a year for the nation's economy to bounce back and predicted "deep layoffs" in the industry after Jan. 1 if sales don't pick up.

Hunt memo stuns jurors

Tempers frayed; Sirica warns lawyers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With tempers frayed as the Watergate cover-up trial neared the end of its eighth week, U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica warned lawyers today they would have to "accept the consequences" if they could not keep their emotions under control.

Sirica did not elaborate, but his remark apparently referred to the possibility of an official reprimand or even a contempt citation.

The prosecution's plan to wrap up its case by midday was stimied by lengthy final cross-examination of bugging conspirator E. Howard Hunt Jr. and legal disputes over controversial evidence.

Sirica broke in as assistant special prosecutor Richard BenVeniste and William S. Frates, attorney for defendant John D. Ehrlichman, argued across the courtroom as they have so often during the trial.

"I have said this several times before and I will say it again —I will not permit this in my courtroom," Sirica said angrily. "If it happens too often, somebody will have to accept the consequences after the trial is over and I don't have to spell what I mean out. Period. Let's proceed."

Hunt was recalled to the stand to testify about a memo he had written just one week after Richard M. Nixon's landslide re-election as president in 1972. In it, he demanded that the administration live up to its "commitments" of hush money and pardons for the Watergate burglars.

That long-missing memo, described as a "bombshell" by the prosecution when it surfaced under mysterious circumstances early this month, was laid before the jury Thursday at the conspiracy trial of five former Nixon aides accused of covering up the scandal.

One of the masterminds of the bugging, Hunt listened impassively from the witness stand.

Normally inscrutable, a number of jurors looked stunned as Assistant Special Prosecutor Richard Ben-Veniste slowly read aloud the three-page Hunt memo, accusing the Nixon administration of reneging on its word.

"The defendants have followed all instructions meticulously, keeping their part of the bargain by maintaining silence...," Hunt wrote on Nov. 14, 1972.

"Having recovered from post-election euphoria, the administration should now attach high priority to keeping its commitments and taking affirmative action in behalf of the defendants."

Though warning there might be trouble ahead if the demands weren't met, the memo ended: "The foregoing should not be misinterpreted as a threat. It is among other things a reminder that loyalty has always been a two-way street."

The demands of Hunt and the others —and the efforts that had been made to meet them — obviously were a major worry to Nixon the following spring as the cover-up began collapsing and the White House scrambled to stave off disaster.

TRAIN WRECKAGE

2 boys who never flew plane before fail to keep plane aloft; five die

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — Two teen-agers tried desperately for 40 minutes Thursday night to keep a small plane aloft in a blinding rainstorm after the pilot slumped dead at the controls.

In the end, they failed. The privately owned plane crashed near Bogota's Eldorado airport, killing all five passengers aboard.

The boys, aged 16 and 17, grabbed the controls when the pilot died of a heart attack shortly before the twin-engine Cessna 421 was to land at Bogata after a flight from Cali in western Colombia.

Neither of the boys had ever flown a plane before but with the radio instructions from the control tower they were able to keep the plane aloft for 40 minutes in a driving rainstorm.

"Gentlemen, we are having problems. We can't see," was the last communication from the teen-aged pilots.

Colombian civil aernautics authorities did not immediately identify the boys, who only told the control tower they were 16 and 17 years old.

The plot was identified as Capt. Gonzalo Duarte, 45. Before suffering the heart attack, he had told the control tower that his left arm was giving him a great deal of pain.

"Then he slumped over the controls," an air traffic controller said.

Demos to try to overturn okay of offshore drilling

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Democrats say they will try to rescind Thursday's approval of new offshore oil drilling when they take away control of the state Lands Commission from lameduck Republicans in January.

The commission, consisting now of the defeated GOP nominees for governor and lieutenant governor and an appointee of Gov. Ronald Reagan, voted unanimously to authorize the drilling of up to 60 wells at six offshore sites.

It was the first new offshore drilling to be approved nearly six years ago that fouled the Santa Barbara Channel and killed thousands of kids.

Controller-elect Ken Cory and Lt. Gov.-elect Mervyn Dymally, who will become commission members in January, called the action "precipitous" and said they would reverse it if legally possible.

The third member of the new commission will be appointed by Gov.-elect Edmund G. Brown Jr., who also has opposed immediate offshore drilling.

Environmentalists and Santa Barbara officials protested the action by the current all-Republican commission, saying environmental impact reports should have been prepared before drilling was approved.

But Donald J. Everitts, a staff advisor to the commission, said no formal report was needed because "there is no possibility of a serious oil spill" at the six sites.

"What about a blowout?" asked William Gesner, a spokesman for Get Oil Out (GOO) and a former roughneck on offshore oil platforms. "Wouldn't a blowout have a sufficient impact on the environment?"

Everitts said no new environmental danger would be created because the drilling would require no major new facilities. He also noted there never has been a major spill on state tidelands.

The new wells are expected to produce an extra 4,000 barrels of oil per day and increase state revenue from tidelands oil by $10,000 a day.

Next month the commission plans to take up consideration of a more extensive drilling project on Project Holly in the Santa Barbara Channel.

Five of the newly approved drilling sites are operated by Standard Oil and one by Mobil.

Standard donated $8,975 to the unsuccessful gubernatorial campaign of Republican Houston I. Flournoy, the state controller and commission chairman. He did not attend the meeting but a representative voted for him.

Lt. Gov. John Harmer, attending the first commission meeting since his appointment, accepted $850 from Standard in his campaign against Dymally.

The third commission member is state Finance Director Verne Orr, a Reagan apposition.

A HAPPY DAY—James Ray Russell is shown kissing his wife, Karen, when he was released from jail Oct. 24 after spending two years in jail without a hearing. Russell was ordered back to jail Thursday to await extradition to Oklahoma to stand trial for murder.

Murder suspect to be extradited

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — James Ray Russell, 25, will be turned over to Oklahoma authorities on Thanksgiving Day to stand trial for murder, unless his extradition appeal is granted before then.

Superior Court Judge Raymond Choate gave Russell's attorney, Roger Agajanian, one week to file an appeal. Choate Thursday ordered Russell extradited to Oklahoma.

Russell has spent more than two years in jail here while battling extradition. At the conclusion of the hearing Thursday, the judge revoked Russell's $5,000 bail and he was taken into custody.

Choate said his ruling did not mean he found Russell guilty of murder but merely that he found the evidence supported the contention that Russell was in Oklahoma at the time.

"Only an Oklahoma court can determine whether he committed the murder," Choate said.

Russell was arrested in Orange County in July, 1972. A judge there ruled against extradition, and Russell was released.

He was re-arrested a few weeks later in Los Angeles County on the request of Oklahoma authorities, who said they had new evidence against him.

He is suspected of robbing and killing a 92-year-old man at Keota, Okla. March 25, 1972. He testified he was in California at the time, and was supported by his second wife, Karen.

His first wife, Demaris, and a cousin, Billy Ray Miller, Jr., testified, however, that Russell was in Oklahoma at the time. Demaris testified that Russell had stayed with her in an Oklahoma motel in March, 1972.

The prosecution presented a registration slip with Russell's name on it, which Demaris testified she saw him sign.

Miller testified that Russell had visited him in Texas early in 1972 and they had gone to Keota. Russell then told Miller he had robbed an old man of $400, Miller said.

New deputy arrested on drug charge

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A new sheriff's deputy has been arrested after he reported for work at the county jail in San Bruno allegedly with marijuana in his possession.

Jose Padillo, 23, hired in August under the federally funded welfare Incentive Now program, was booked into city prison Wednesday on various charges including possession of marijuana for sale.

Police said Padillo had been under investigation for six weeks.

Padillo was the second guard to be charged with narcotics violations in the last three months.

Firm boosts price of newsprint

VANCOUVER, B.C. — MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. announced that it will increase the price of 30-pound standard newsprint by $35 a ton Jan. 1 for its United States customers.

The new price of $280 a ton is a 14.2 per cent increase over the present price of $245 a ton.

The company said a sharp increase in wood costs has made it necessary to re-evaluate its newsprint manufacturing costs for the first six months of 1975.

Even with the increase, a company spokesman said, the company's return on its investment will not be enough to justify the installation of additional production equipment.

MacMillan Bloedel currently is engaged in a program to modernize groundwork operations at its mills with thermo-mechanical pulp facilities, the spokesman said, and is studying other means of increasing production on existing newsprint machines.

The new price represents a 58 per cent increase in newsprint cost since September 1973, when a ton of newsprint sold for $168.

L.A. has cash flow problems

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The city treasury is not really empty, according to Administrative Officer C. Erwin Piper, there is just a problem in "cash flow."

Piper said there is only $29 million in the city's reserve fund, while liabilities against the city total $31 million.

"If we had to pay it all at once, we'd be in trouble," Piper said. "But we don't have to."

The report that the city had empty coffers was touched off when Piper urged the Board of Grants administration Wednesday to postpone recommendation of a $330,000 appropriation until there is more money flowing into the treasury

BEADS AS NUMBERS

DiAnne Drachand, teacher and director of the Montessori Academy of Chino Hills, helps Marcus Weiss, 5, of Diamond Bar learn to count with beads. The teacher and students will demonstrate various techniques and materials at the Montessori open house Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m. The school is located on Parnell Ranch, at the Corona Expressway and Riverside Drive.

Sale of Yule Seals lagging behind '73

Early receipts of Christmas Seal contributions are $50,000 less than for the same period last year, according to Peter D. McDermott, president of the Lung Association of Los Angeles County.

"Our need for funds is greater and more urgent than ever before," McDermott said. "Our association is trying to keep pace with the growth of emphysema and other respiratory diseases which have doubled in the last five years.

"We are presently providing breathing machines for about 150 persons and could put at least another 400 machines to immediate use for victims of emphysema and other disabling diseases who cannot breathe and live without them."

The association's emphysema clubs, breathing retraining program and counseling for parents of asthmatic children also urgently need funds for maintenance and expansion, McDermott stated.

Christmas Seals also fund breathing tests, professional and public health education and support research into respiratory diseases.

Goal for this year's campaign is $1,450,000.

Women seek $6 million

Sterilization claims filed against county

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Three women filed claims against the County-USC Medical Center for $6 million Wednesday, charging they were sterilized without fully realizing what they had consented to do.

An attorney for the women, Richard Cruz, said he thought they took legal action after being contacted by one of the organizations fighting sterilization programs.

The women are all in their 20s and early 30s, married, and according to the lawsuit want to have more children.

The women maintained that although they signed "informed consent" authorizations, they did so immediately after childbirth while they were still in pain and groggy from sedation.

Dr. Edward Quilligan, chief of professional services at the center's Women's Hospital, said that before February 1974, sterilization was left to a decision by the doctor and patient.

The three women were sterilized in 1972 and 1973.

But after the national controversy over sterilization programs, he said, procedures were made stricter, requiring at least two doctors to approve sterilizations, and then only after the women has "thought about it for at least three days."

The doctor who operated on one of the women who filed the claim reported he sterilized her "because she was begging that it be done," Quilligan said.

The claim said that the woman, far from realizing that she had been permanently sterilized, was fitted six weeks later with an intrauterine contraceptive device, as a temporary birth control measure which she retained for two years.

If the claims are rejected by the county government, the women could then bring suit.

Madrinas Club plans benefit sale

Members of the Las Madrinas Club will sponsor a rummage sale Dec. 6-7 in Upland to benefit branches of the West End Boys' Clubs, Inc.

The sale will be held at the Upland Boys' Club, 845 W. Alpine St., from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on both days.

Club vice president Elaine Bell said proceeds will go towards helping out in programs needed for all West End Boys' Clubs branches.

Miscellaneous household items and clothing will be offered at the sale. Public support is invited.

Hahn fails to block smog unit on old cars

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Supervisor Kenneth Hahn and the county government failed Wednesday in their first court attempt to halt the mandatory installation of more smog control devices on 1966-70 cars in Southern California.

They failed to obtain a preliminary injunction stopping the implementation and enforcement of the program.

Superior Court Judge Campbell Lucas postponed a decision on the matter until Jan. 20. He said he would not consider ordering the program stopped until another judge rules Nov. 29 on legal objections to a civil suit raised by the state Air Resources Board, the defendant.

The suit charges that the law is unconstitutional and discriminatory because it requires installation of the $35 devices only in eight Southern California counties, and not in the state's 52 other counties.

Following the postponement, state attorney general Evelle Younger's office announced that the smog device installation program was still in effect and would be enforced by the California Highway Patrol.

The devices are to be installed on the specified cars in Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, Ventura, Orange, Riverside, and San Bernardino counties. They are designed to cut down emissions of oxides of nitroge, unaffected by the devices already mounted on older cars. Opponents say the devices ruin engines.

Fathers no longer can watch births

ROENNE, Denmark (UPI) — Chief surgeon Gunnar Hey has refused to allow expectant fathers to watch births in his hospital ward.

"We haven't got enough staff to take care of fainting fathers," he told staff members of the Central Hospital.

School holding Autumn Festival

Parents, students, faculty and guests will participate in the Autumn Festival of Claremont Collegiate School Saturday from 2 to 8 p.m.

The Parents Club is sponsoring the event with President Virginia Adkins of Alta Loma and vice president Muriel Sharp of Pomona coordinating plants. Margy Gates of Claremont, art teacher at Collegiate, is helping the students with appropriate autumn decorations. Displays featuring a variety of pumpkins, squash and gourds by the Fair Valley Grange 752 and Los Angeles County Pomona Grange 37 will add to the atmosphere.

The festival will be an open house for alumni and interested persons. A display entitled "Collegiate Trrough the Years," organized by Helen Cooper, will present a history of the school.

Entertainment has been organized by Odetta and Anat Myers. Betty Davenport Ford, local artist, will demonstrate the art of ceramic sculpture while Rick Mattieson is featured in mime, Richard Chase as folklorist, the Pomona College Theater Arts Department in pantomine of "The Workers in Progress" and Keith Scott plays folk and electric guitar.

Muffin Gould and Miss Meyers, both students at Collegiate, will present a demonstration of folk dancing in which guests are invited to participate.

Trere will be a display of folk instruments by Charles Chase of the Folk Music Center in Claremont.

Eloise Baker and Anne Gould of Claremont are in charge of the committee to provide a barbecue dinner from 5 to 7 p.m. Cider, doughnuts, coffee, punch, popcorn, hot dogs and apples will be sold throughout the day.

A bonfire will conclude the day's festivities.

Others assisting in the event's coordination are Catherine Helt of Pomona and Andree Mahoney of Cucamonga, publicity; and Joyce D'Oyen and Linval D'Oyen of Pomona, invitations.

Tre event is open to the general public.

Novel paint job: colored polka dots cover station

COSTA MESA, Calif. (UPI) — Anyone driving into R. J. Smith's service station who sees spots doesn't have a vision problem. That's the station.

Smith says that when he asked the oil company to repaint the station for him, a service representative told him "if I wanted it done I could do it myself."

"I asked him what color (they) wanted, and he said, 'How about polka dots?'"

His station is now adorned with mauve, black, yellow, lime green, puce, red, blue and offwhite polka dots.

"I kind of like it this way," he said. "Maybe they'll adopt it for all their stations."

Redheads all

Gen. George Armstrong Custer, Thomas Jefferson, Judas Iscariot, Bernard Shaw and Margaret Sanger were all redheaded.

Outdoor Yule lighting gets McCall's okay

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Outdoor Christmas tree lighting has been given an official approval by Gov. Tom McCall.

Last year, because of low stream flow and a shortage of electricity, McCall discouraged outdoor lighting during the holiday season.

But this week in a letter to Emery Neale, Portland, president of a firm which is a wholesale distributor of lights and ornaments, McCall said:

"We need to be concerned, too about another symbol—the spirit of Christmas.

"It's a spiritually uplifting time. And it's a time when we hope to see some sparkle and gaiety in our lives and about us."

3 men shot to death after dating same girl

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —A young man who was shot to death in front of his home was the third person to die in recent months after dating an 18-year-old girl, police said Thursday.

Oscar Mansilla, 18, was shot twice in the head with a shotgun Wednesday night as he returned home from a date with the girl, Christine Wright. He died at Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital three hours later.

Last July 8, George Echevarria, 22, who had dated Miss Wright, was shot to death in East Los Angeles. Ten days ago, Michael Steve Marrufo, 24, was killed and a bystander was wounded when two men approached a loading dock of a distributing company and opened fire. Marrufo also had dated Miss Wright, police said.

"We don't know if these murders are because of jealousy or just what it is at the present time," police Lt. Earl Deemer said.

Mansilla had driven Miss Wright to visit her sister Wednesday night and then had taken her home, Deemer said.

When he stopped in front of his home, another car pulled up beside him and an occupant fired two shotgun blasts which hit his head.

Officers discovered the link among the three deaths after interviewing Mansilla's parents who told them he had been seeing Miss Wright. When they talked with her, she told them of the deaths of the other two men but could not give a motive for any of the slayings.

Officers said both Echevarria and Marruo were believed to be members of street gangs but that Mansilla had no known gang connections.

One suspect, Humberto Rios, 19, has been arrested in connection with the Marrufo death but no suspects have been found in the Echevarria shooting. Police said Friday a note was left behind at the scene of the Marrufo shooting but the contents were not released.

Pure water

The waters of the Amazon River are among the purest in the world. Water tested by a joint U.S.-Brazilian expedition were found to have a chemical purity nearly equal to that of distilled water and greater than tap water in the United States. One reason for the water's purity is that the heavy rainfall in the river basin has almost completely washed the soil of readily soluble minerals.

JAMES PINO

Quaker talk covers hobby and politics

Politics and a hobby will be the subjects of a dual presentation by James Pino, executive secretary of the Friends (Quaker) Committee on Legislation, Saturday noon at the Friends Meeting House, Claremont.

Pino will speak on "The Political Outlook for 1975" and will show his replica of a completely furnished Appalachian cabin.

Joining him in a discussion of politics will be Kenneth Morgan of Sylmar, chairman of the Southern California branch of the national organization.

Some tools in Pino's display are over 100 years old. The exhibit and a bazaar of plants and handcrafted goods are part of an annual fund raising event for the committee on legislation, which has registered lobbies in both Sacramento and Washington and maintains an office in Pasadena.

Hours for the exhibit and bazaar are 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. An eggs and pancake brunch will be offered at $2 for adults and $1 for students.

Kleindienst is censured

PHOENIX (UPI) — Former U.S. attorney general Richard Kleindienst has been censured by the Arizona Supreme Court in Washington D.C.

Kleindienst was fined $100 and placed on 30 days unsupervised probation last summer after he pleaded guilty to withholding information from a Senate investigating committee.

The high court acted on the recommendation of the Board of Governors of the state Bar of Arizona, which favored censure by an 8-6 margin. Bar President Stanley G. Feldman of Tucson said none of the board members favored disbarment of Kleindienst, who practiced law in Phoenix before joining the Nixon Administration. However, some did favor a suspension.

The bar's official report said Kleindienst gave "inaccurate, evasive or incomplete answers" to several questions about the International Telephone and Telegraph antitrust case. He was questioned about the matter by the Senate Judiciary Committee when it held hearings on his confirmation as attorney general.

Right cup, but wrong time

MIAMI (UPI) — Pretty Pat Hohn found the quickest way to change out of a swimsuit recently when she dived underwater to demonstrate a three-piece suit and emerged wearing a two-piece.

The 18-year-old fashion model was demonstrating a New York manufacturer's new "tri-kini swimsuit—which amounts to two large pasties and a bikini bottom.

Promoters of the new line by Bleuette Inc. told reporters and photographers gathered around a swimming pool to see the fashion show that the suit was "a new concept to achieve a beautiful uplift and allow a perfect smooth suntan without strap marks in front or back."

"Most important," the manufacturer emphasized, "The cups cover bosoms fully and the cups stay on in water."

MSAC fund surplus is losing bloom to inflation, expansion

By BOB NAGEY
P-B Staff Writer

A $3 million surplus in revenue, expected this year by the Mt. San Antonio College District because of higher student attendance, state aid and assessed valuations, apparently isn't going to last very long.

Trustees of the district dipped into those reserves Thursday for nearly $1.2 million to finance a three-fold expansion and improvement program on the campus.

And they took under consideration a request by employes for a 6 per cent across-the-board interim pay raise which would cost more than $600,000.

The raises, if approved, would be in addition to a 9 per cent boost granted to all full-time employes last July.

Spokesmen for the employes argued that the earlier raise already has been eaten up by inflation and that the interim raise was needed to keep up with the cost of living which is rising at the rate of more than 12 per cent a year.

Gerald A. Peter, salary committee chairman, said that at least seven other community college districts in the state were granting interim raises to their staffs because of the inflation.

As for the building program, James Simpson, vice president in charge of business affairs, told the board that since much of the surplus was a "one time windfall" coming on a state adjustment credit, this was a good time to finance projects which the college needs and whose basic costs could be paid out of those funds.

The projects include extension of the air conditioning system to the rest of the campus at a cost of $430,000.

The board approved preliminary plans for the installation of air conditioning in 10 buildings, and instructed the administration to call for bids.

Also included among the projects is the expansion of the computer sciences building on the northwest end of the campus.

Plans call for a 1,300-square-foot addition of two rooms that will house the computers and the programming section. The expansion would cost about $200,000.

The board approved the proposal and instructed Simpson to call for bids.

The surplus also will enable the college to spend about $500,000 on the completion of part of the library which had been left unfinished when it was built five years ago.

Simpson said preliminary plans for finishing about 15,000 square feet of the 25,000-square-foot section have been completed and asked the board to pay the architects their fee up to date.

The lower level of the library will include a resource center as well as a conference room and classrooms.

Cancer victims bounce back in volunteer work

By BARBARA RAUCH
P-B Staff Writer

A growing number of American Cancer Society volunteers in the valley are assisting cancer patients by activities that range from providing transportation to direct moral support of patients.

Among the busiest of these volunteers are three local women: Ferne Schecter of La Verne, Katherine Christ of Pomona and Betty Lessard of Montclair — who had special occasion this week to discuss their programs.

During this week, American Cancer Society Education Week, the various programs and services of the society receive special attention but the approximately 175 volunteers in the area are active throughout the year.

Mrs. Schecter has been Pomona Valley coordinator of the Reach-to-Recovery Program for a little over a year. The program is designed to assist the mastectomy patient in coping with her emotional, physical and cosmetic needs after surgery.

All Reach-to-Recovery volunteers are fully recovered mastectomy patients. They visit new patients usually the third to the fifth day after surgery bringing a gift kit containing a temporary breast form, a number of booklets and an exercise ball and rope. The volunteer demonstrates the exercises and provides information on types of prothesis but most of all she provides moral support.

"We chat and answer questions but most of all we show that you can be a normal woman after the surgery. Quite often the emotional experience is more devastating than the fear of cancer itself," Mrs. Schecter explained.

A cheerful outgoing woman, Mrs. Schecter reacted to her own mastectomy with characteristic optimism. "It's normal to have depression after the surgery but I was able to avoid it," she remembers.

Reminiscing, she points out that she really didn't expect it to be cancerous, I'm such an optimist. When I woke up, my husband was there with me when I was told and I think that helped a lot."

She noted that the operation usually does not affect a marriage. "If it's a good marriage, it usually strengthens it because the husband is so grateful that she is all right," she explained.

Mrs. Schecter,s husband, Joseph, is a surgeon practicing in Upland. She is the mother of six children, the youngest being a 16-year-old boy, a junior at Bonita High School.

Active in her church, and other organizations, she is enthusiastic about volunteer service for the cancer society. "The real satisfaction comes when you can be of service to others and this is direct service to others on a face-to-face basis," she smiled.

HERBERT STEIN

Former economic adviser to speak

Herbert Stein, former chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, will speak at Claremont Men's College Dec. 4 at 1 p.m. in Bauer Lecture Hall.

Stein, who is now a professor of economics at the University of Virginia, will be the first speaker in the 1974-75 Major Issues Lecture Series at the college.

His talk is entitled "Business-Government Relations."

Stein was associated with the Committee for Economic Development for almost 25 years. Beginning as an economist on the staff, he was associate director and director of research, vice president and chief economist, and from 1967-69, chief economic consultant. 2 density proposals: 1 approved, 1 denied

SAN BERNARDINO (CNS) — The county Planning Commission Thursday approved one plan to permit lower housing density in northwest Chino and denied a second plan which would have permitted increased density on a 140-acre site in Carbon Canyon.

The approved plan is an 'amendment to the valley portion of the county master plan. It affects 1,120 acres bounded by Schaefer Avenue, Corona Expressway, the Pomona Freeway and the Los Angeles County Line.

Presently this area is a mixture of low density residential and agricultural uses, with some commercial uses along Riverside Drive.

Specifically the amendment will establish a maximum of about 4,000 dwelling units with a population estimate of approximately 10,000 persons. Some light industrial and neighborhood commercial uses will continue to be permitted.

A report from the planning staff said, "The amendment is the culmination of cooperative efforts between the county Planning Department, the Chino Planning Deprtment, and local citizens groups.

"It is an attempt to replace a land use designation which would allow all densities of residential development and some manufacturing uses. The proposal is to create more precise land use designations which will lower the amount and intensity of development potential."

The second plan was a proposal to amend the recently approved Chino Hills General Plan to permit increased residential density on a 140-acre site on the south side of Carbon Canyon Road between Valley Spring Road and Old Carbon Canyon Road. It was denied by a 4 to 2 vote.

Most of the commissioners apparently agreed with a staff report recommending denial of the proposal on the grounds that the general plan for the area strongly recommended that the area be limited to low residential density.

The staff report noted that the low residential density recommendations were incorporated in the plan after seven major meetings with community representatives and added, "The proposal would violate the intent of the newly adopted plan by not phasing growth in an orderly manner as the community desires it."

The request was to increase the land use designation from one dwelling unit for every five acres to one or two dwelling units per acre, an increase of about 10 times the density on 140 acres.

The application also sought approval for the designation of a portion of the property along Carbon Canyon Road as neighborhood commercial, as well as a provision to permit mobile home parks, but these requests were withdrawn by the applicant, Boise Cascade.

Sidney Bogen, director of engineering for Boise Cascade, told the commission that his company intended to plan the development and then sell the plans to some other developer.

Best time for post office stop: a.m. in midweek

Patrons don't have to wait in line for service at the Pomona post office, Postmaster Warren Lunch said today.

He said he has received a number of complaints from those who find themselves in long lines on Monday and Friday afternoons.

"There are rarely any lines in the mornings," the postmaster said. "There is very little waiting most of the time during the midweek hours."

He urged patrons who can to avoid the Monday and Friday afternoon rush hours, and come to the post office at other times.

He said the best time to come is between 10 a.m. and noon.

Rare breeds among the 250 entries in weekend cat show

More than 250 entries will be exhibited Saturday and Sunday at the Teacher's Pet Cat Club's second annual cat show at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds at Pomona.

Many rare and unusual breeds including Chocolate Persians, Lilac Persians, Ragdolls, Platinum Burmese, and the newly recognized Blue Burmese will be displayed in Building 5A for the public from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. both days by Teacher's Pet, an affiliate of the American Cat Association.

Special feature of the show will be various cats offered for adoption by several animal organizations.

Felines, neutered and spayed, will be on display in the Fund for Animals booth. Wilma McDonald will exhibit orphans from Ailuros-Phlos (Friends of Felines); The Altered Cat Association; Lakewood's First Cat Club; and Pet Welfare Cat Club.

Previous winners again vying for top awards include Champion Pupuli Silver Sword, third All-American Shorthair; Grand Champion Ha-Lee's Chocolate Fudge; Grand Champion Lovebunny's Crystal Frost; and Lovebunny's Individual, six-time grand champ and All-American Silver Tabby Manx for 11 straight years.

MSAC no longer will require students to take entry exam

Starting this spring, first-time students at Mt. San Antonio College will no longer be required to take an entrance exam.

Required for the past 20 years for all new students as a guide in certain majors and business and English beginning classes, the test is now being phases out, according to Dr. Bruce L. Paulson, dean of counseling and guidance.

He said "The changing needs of students and the possibility that the test is a barrier to admission for many students prompted the requirement withdrawal."

The School and College Ability Test (SCAT) will continue to be administered for all students who want to take it and will be strongly recommended for all students with degree objectives, Paulson said.

"SCAT tests will still be used as guides, so counselors may program their counselees into proper classes in various majors. But it will not be required for admission," he said.

Paulson said because of the large number of late registrants it was almost impossible to test, evaluate and register students before the semester begins.

Although entrance exams have been required for all new students who attend classes during the day, evening division students were not required to take the exam.

Two cities argue plaza bus stop

By MAE TATE
P-B Staff Writer

Administrators of Montclair and Ontario continued to argue the feasibility of a bus stop at the Montclair Plaza as a technical committee of city and county staff prepares to meet late today.

The technical committee of the San Bernardino Associated Governments will meet in San Bernardino in an attempt to iron out differences and harsh words between the two West End cities.

The issue is whether the Montclair Plaza, the large regional shopping center at Central and Moreno avenues, will be considered as a pickup-dropoff point in the West End transportation system.

Roger Hughbanks, assistant city manager of Ontario, voiced concern this week about the plaza stop.

"The staff thinking on this at this point is that there are some serious questions that have to be answered before a decision is made on the proposed route from south Ontario to the Montclair Plaza," he said.

"Six months ago when the map came out, we raised questions and indicated that before we would accept this route we would take a good, hard look at it."

Hughbanks denied allegations that the Ontario objection was stimulated by a fear of losing retail sales from the Ontario Plaza to the Montclair center.

"I resent the implication by some that we're so stupid or parochial that we are attempting to inconvenience people shopping at the Montclair Plaza. The Montclair Plaza is there. It's a fact that cannot be ignored. Trying to inconvenience people shopping there has not been a factor. I'm sure there are business people in the community who feel the retail sales thing is important. But this does not reflect the thinking of the city. The staff worries are legitimate."

Hughbanks contended the principal concern was that elderly and disadvantaged persons in south Ontario would be inconvenienced by traveling to the Montclair Plaza, then transferring to another bus in order to reach the San Antonio Community Hospital and medical complex at Seventh Street and 3rd Avenue in Upland.

City Administrator Lauren Wasserman of Montclair questioned the authenticity of Hughbanks' arguments, saying, "There are a lot of senior citizens who are healthy and don't go just to the hospital or doctor. It is wrong to assume that being elderly means being sick. There are probably just as many or more healthy senior citizens who might want to go to the Montclair Plaza and browse or enjoy some of the cultural activities there."

Both men agreed that the county complex of offices at Sixth Street and Mountain Avenue should be serviced. However, discord again developed regarding the volume of traffic going to the plaza.

Hughbanks asserted that the figures on ridership of Alan M. Voorhees, transit consultant, are in error, and these volume errors will result in increased net costs.

On the other hand, Wasserman reported that the Montclair Plaza staff has supplied data from surveys there which show that an average of 350,000 cars a month come to the complex.

"We have data showing that eight per cent of the shoppers are from Montclair, 18 per cent from Ontario, 15 per cent from Upland, 15 per cent from Pomona, seven per cent from Claremont and seven per cent from Chino. One of the purposes of public transportation is not only to get people around, but to reduce miles traveled. We've (the cities throughout San Bernardino County) paid more than $100,000 for a master transportation plan that should serve traffic generating areas," Wasserman stated.

Hughbanks asked, "Whom should we try to give the best service to? Whom should we inconvenience the least?"

"Let's start serving the interests of citizens, not cities. We're loosing sight of our perspective with these thoughts of sales tax competition and forgetting about the people who put us here in our jobs," Wasserman concluded.

The cities of Chino and Upland viewed the clash over the stop as having little, if any, effect on their communities.

Upland City Manager Lee Travers stated that his staff had no objection to a stop at the Montclair Plaza.

City Manager Bob Fast of Chino felt that until the line of service is determined by the West Valley Transit Service Authority, the present clash is merely rhetoric.

Embezzler faces a mental exam before sentence

A former Pomona department store hostess has been ordered to undergo a 90-day period of psychological examination before being sentenced for the theft of an estimated $30,000 from her former employer.

Mary Catherine Wagner, 42, former hostess-cashier for Buffums, was remanded to custody Thursday when she appeared before Pomona Superior Court Judge Francis J. Garvey.

Mrs. Wagner, of Alta Loma, pleaded guilty last month to a grand theft charge in connection with the missing funds. Investigators said they suspect the cash was taken over a one to two-year period while Mrs. Wagner was employed at the department store's restaurant.

Judge Garvey scheduled Mrs. Wagner's next appearance in court Feb. 19.

School finance solution proposed

A couple of years ago when Senate Bill 90 became state law, public school officials throughout the state hailed it as being the answer to the financial woes imposed by inflation and growth.

At long last, they echoed, the state was accepting its historic role of equal partnership in the financing of public education. But it really hasn't worked out the way everyone thought. The formula for state funding has not worked to the advantage of very many districts.

On the contrary, state allocations have been inadequate. Hoping to make up the deficit in state financing, local school boards have gone back to local taxpayers for more money, only to find the well dry.

Taxpayers, bedeviled by ever higher taxes and inflation, have been reluctant to vote themselves additional taxes, even for education. Pomona and Bonita school districts suffered tax override defeats at the polls earlier this month. Even so, they are proposing to return to the voters again early next year. The likelihood of their passing is not very good.

It has been clear for some time among school finance experts that the salvation of public education is statewide financing. Thus, a plan just proposed to the State Board of Education that would phase in a statewide property tax over the next five years merits considerable study and evaluation.

The plan proposes to replace Senate Bill 90 as the instrument for bringing about fiscal equality among California school districts. Essentially, the plan is to replace most local school property taxes with a statewide property tax of $4 per $100 assessed valuation.

The cost of providing a "quality" support level would be borne by the statewide tax in combination with federal funds and money from the state general fund. Not more than half the cost of the program in any year would come from the statewide property tax.

Dollars raised by wealthy districts above a standard amount per pupil would go into a pool for use by low wealth districts to bring them up to the standard.

The proposal is a long way from even being presented to the legislature, and certainly there will be modifications to the plan, but we believe that any idea that addresses itself to equal quality education for every child in California merits the highest priority from our state legislators.

No Christmas recession

Despite inflation and unemployment and a shaky economy, one American tradition — the Christmas Club — has continued and even thrived in 1974.

More than 19 million individuals opened Christmas Club accounts this year. This is a 6 per cent increase over 1973, according to figures tabulated by Christmas Club a Corporation, creators of special savings programs for banks and other financial institutions since 1910.

Deposits in the more than 12,500 Christmas Clubs across the country climbed to over $3.75 billion in 1974, says John H. Guinan, president of Christmas Club a Corporation, even though the accounts often do not pay interest. This was a 12 per cent jump in deposits over 1973.

The average depositor will have saved an estimated $205 this year, compared with $182 last year.

The North Pole will not be a depressed area this Christmas.

%#$!? does not compute

Speaking of basic education, a computer at the University of Akron is demonstrating the kind of pedagogical moxie that seems to have become a thing of the past among human teachers on some campuses. It won't tolerate any student who swears at it or uses obscene language.

According to Tim Taylor, assistant director of the university's computer-assisted instruction center, the moralistic machine has been "programmed with every cuss word" they could think of. Also with patience. It is only after it has been insulted three times that the computer lays down the law by saying, "Now I've had enough. You apologize or shall we just quit working?"

If the offending student doesn't apologize, the computer shuts off.

Prefers stress on academics

Congratulations to Mrs. L. Martin for "hitting the nail on the head" in her letter of 11-4-74. Hopefully, the Board of Education will receive the message that the public is getting tired of warped priorities, perverted programs, and deviant texts of dubious merit as part of a program of experimental education. I find it most interesting to be advised, from a board member, that this abomination, "Growing Up With Sex," (every parent should read it for themselves) was trucked into our city in the "dark of night" on the day of school opening, prior to anyone having previously inspected same. In fact, one board member had to obtain a copy from a local community before he could peruse its contents for himself. Is it any wonder the community votes "no confidence" on bond and override issues?

While Mrs. Martin points out one area of deficiency, I would also like to note that in at least one elementary school in our district, teachers are forced to supply pencils and erasers for their charges out of their own pocketbooks. It seems that it is more important to teach sex, masturbation and coital technique than to supply the bare necessities of elementary education . . . at least in some eyes.

Where does the "buck" stop? In the lap of the Superintendent of Schools! Perhaps some other community not quite as "staid" as Pomona might welcome this progressive and "enlightened guidance" for their children, but I think most of us would rather stress academics of the common variety for our Pomona children. Isn't this what it is all about?

As long as there are parents who are concerned, moral and interested, such as Mrs. Martin, the district will be hard pressed to have parents vote an increase to their taxes in order to put hard covered copies of Playboy, no matter what the innocuous title, in the schools as approved texts in sex education.

Who approved the sex education textbook? Why don't our teachers have pencils and erasers, workbooks and paper? What are the credentials of this "minister" who sanctions homosexuality and masturbation as reading for 13 and 14 year olds? Is this our quality education? I think not. — Dr. T. E. O'Donohue, Pomona.

'Finest hour' for paper shufflers

WASHINGTON — Neither war, nor pestilence, nor terrorist attack can stanch the processing of government forms.

A few weeks ago, for example, seven terrorists grabbed eight hostages in the Dominican Republic. Among the prisoners was Barbara Hutchinson, who headed the local U.S. information office.

For two long weeks, the insurgents held out, demanding $1 million ransom and the release of 38 political prisoners from Dominican jails. Throughout the ordeal, U.S. Ambassador Robert Hurwitch and other officials negotiated intermittently with the terrorists.

The lives of the hostages hung in the balance. But among the paperclip crowd, the event merely generated extra paperwork.

There were forms to fill out, for example, to account for the food and drink, which were delivered daily to the guerrillas and their hostages.

Much of the food came from the U.S. embassy which, unhappily, had no authorization to feed desperados. Who would pay for the vittles, and how was the expense to be justified?

Hurwitch thought the money should be taken from the embassy's "representation allowance," a fund that is supposed to finance parties, receptions and similar soirees "in U.S. interests."

The trouble was that the voucher forms simply weren't worded to accommodate the occasion.

In the wee hours one morning during the siege, Ambassador Hurwitch, exasperated over the paperwork, decided to let the State Dept. wrestle with the problem. "This might keep Washington busy for awhile," he suggested brightly to his sleepy assistants.

Thereupon, Hurwitch composed a tongue-in-cheek cable, carefully classified it "Confidential," and fired it off to the home office.

"Dept. should be aware," states the classified cable, "that most of the sandwiches that have been delivered (to the terrorists) . . . are product of the Ambassador's cuisine. The soft drinks have been on him . . ."

"After perusing all pertinent current regulations as well as studying all possible historical precedents which might enlighten, we regretfully confess that we are unable . . . to complete the representation voucher. We just don't seem to be able to get the boxes on the form to fit the occasion.

"Such fundamental questions arise as to whether the kidnapers as well as the hostages should be claimed. Can we properly maintain that feeding kidnapers is a social function that promotes U.S. interests?

"Among the hostages, there is a Spanish priest of the Dominican order; how do we feel about him, representation-wise? It should be noted that although this priest is referred to as 'he,' when the question of obtaining the release of the women was discussed with President Balaguer, the Spanish Ambassador quickly pointed out that his client wore skirts. If the priest is considered a legitimate representation claim, under what sex should we list him . . .

"We would be most appreciative if the (State Dept.) would put its talent to work and provide us guidance on filling out the representation voucher before too many more sandwiches are eaten."

HUNGER AND HATE: In the impoverished parts of the world, 700 million people are suffering debilitating hunger. Many of them will die of starvation.

The American people, of course, have donated more than their share to feed the hungry. Each year, the United States gives away or sells at nominal cost $1 billion worth of grain to poor countries.

In contrast, the greedy oil-producing nations aren't giving away oil or lowering the price for poor countries.

Yet, when the media of the world starts to depict starving millions, consider the kind of hatred that could be directed toward well-fed Americans.

It is estimated that the livestock in America consume enough foodstuffs each year to feed 1.3 billion people. Put another way, if Americans were to switch to the diet of the Chinese, the United States could feed almost one billion people more than it does. Or to put it still another way, the average American uses up five times as much agricultural resources as the average Indian, Nigerian or Colombian.

Americans put enough fertilizer on their lawns and parks to make up India's fertilizer shortage. With this fertilizer, India could grow the grain it needs to save perhaps millions from starvation.

The grain that goes into the alcohol that Americans drink could feed 20 million people a year. All it would take to prevent mass starvation in the world would be a three per cent reduction in grain consumption by the American people — in other words, just a few meatless days and a little less booze.

RAY CROMLEY

No light at end of energy tunnel

WASHINGTON (NEA) — If you think we have coal troubles now, wait a few years.

President Ford's energy advisers have come to the reluctant conclusion that those much-touted esoteric energy sources — shale, geothermal, solar and gasification — are a long way off practically and politically.

Administration planners have therefore conveniently forecast a major increase in mining. They plan strong pressures to get oil-using utilities to shift back to coal. They have been pushing devices for sulfur control, essential to comply with environmental standards when burning coal mined in the East today. These plans look impressive on paper but they don't square with the facts of coal production and the problems which stand in the way of sharp increases.

I've been sitting through a series of meetings with the man in that industry and in others which must provide the money and the equipment for boosting coal production rapidly enough to meet the need. The outlook is dismal.

The problems in expanding near-the-surface Western coal are numerous. For one, there is the complicated ownership of chunks of the coal-bearing land. In numerous instances, the surface rights are owned by private individuals and the underground rights by government. Then there are the inevitable environmental battles.

Here it's not principally the environmental restrictions as such but the delays as one group after another halts the start of operations to have its day before government agencies or in court. Even tough environmental restrictions can be handled if they are specific, the problem is that there is much disagreement among environmental groups as to what they want and what is practical.

This means we will have to depend on production from those Eastern mines where working conditions are abominable and the seams too thin for cheap, efficient mining. The introduction of new labor saving devices in many of the mines we are dependent on will be difficult indeed, which means that coal prices will go up with labor costs. The latter are pushed by an inflation we seem unable to stifle.

We have already seen the speed with which increased petroleum costs have affected prices throughout the economy. It will be no different with coal though at a slower pace. The current labor conflicts will boost the costs of electric power, steel and a host of other products. These price rises will have a domino effect on the cost of much of what we buy. Worse yet, this is just the beginning.

There has been a tendency of late to solve all problems by means of new laws. The coal dispute shows once again that this is not possible or practical. There is a law on the books — Taft-Hartley and President Ford's aides have made it clear through leaks to the press they believe the application of that law would be counterproductive in a coal strike. This is a view apparently widely shared in Congress. Believing this, it is appalling that no plans were made well in advance for alternate sources of supply in case of a lengthy walkout.

The administration doesn't want to invoke Taft-Hartley if needed. It doesn't want rationing. So far, so good. These may be logical decisions, but then what? What we have from the Senate, the House and Mr. Ford is thumb-twiddling, government officials running back and forth between management and labor pleading and cajoling. But there are no plans for an emergency.

J. K. (DOC) PEIRSOL

Just in jest

Once, in our more affluent days, we Americans had so much money we figured we could buy anything we wanted in the whole wide world. But now it is the oil-rich Arabs who are gobbling up all life's goodies. — And are we screaming! — Who do those Arabs think they are flaunting their riches and ruining world price structures which formerly were only ours to ruin?

Well, they know all right and they have the wherewithal to prove it. So now we are joining the ranks of those who are shouting to high heaven because a one time rosy world is being ruined by wealth flaunting outlanders. — Why these days with coffee 25 cents a cup and a hot roll 50 cents, only an Arab can afford a coffee break. And to further puncture our American dollar power superiority complex, government economists are warning us that if we expect to weather the storm we had better start combining rice with our more expensive foods in order to stretch our food dollars. — So there goes the rice for the mouths of China! And we Americans are still the dirty plutocrats. — Doesn't it all sort of give you the feeling that nobody loves us anymore?

TOM TIEDE

Skinny-dipping in the public pool

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — In the early days of the Republic, when democracy was a pursuit rather than a word, the White House was open to one and all. Tom Jefferson once invited his butcher to dinner; Dolley Madison served refreshments to citizens who lined up daily in the halls; John Quincy Adams is said to have, on occasion, taken his visitors skinny dipping in the Potomac.

The wonderful practice fell on hard times during Martin Van Buren's administration, however, when he discontinued public audiences. It never recovered.

In recent decades the Pennsylvania Avenue building has been so encapsulated in security that public visits have been limited to hokey tour groups. The bottom was reached during the Nixon reign when a priest departed from tour orthodoxy and dropped to his knees in prayer; he was arrested.

Now, though, there seems to be a movement backwards. Gerald Ford has established an unprecedented Office of Public Liaison which has as its responsibility, bringing together the people and the government. Each Wednesday the office invites some organized segment of the public to meet on a give-and-take conversational basis with high officials, background subordinates and often, even the President himself.

When you think of it, post-Nixon, it's astounding. Accountability is once again in slight vogue.

Ironically, the concept was initiated during the days Nixon stalked what observers called the White House gloom tomb. Before he got religion, and later busted, Charles Colson was given the duty of "coordinating relationships with outside organizations." The world "outside" suggests the spirit of his assignment. In May of last year, at the suggestion of veteran Republican hanger-on William Baroody, a more formal liaison office was established. "We held two functions," says Baroody aide Jeff Eves, "then we died. The concept got lost in the, uh, er, the maze (Watergate)."

In an attempt to hold position under new President Ford, Baroody made his suggestion again. Ford bought it, as well he should have. Today the liaison office is still little known to the public but its efforts are apparently pleasing and surprising those who've thus far been involved.

"You know," says a Ralph Nader assistant, "Ralph was invited to one of the Wednesday meetings. Can you imagine? He couldn't have gotten in the White House door with an ax during Nixon. We think it's at least a favorable omen."

Thus buoyed with the public response and charged with a relatively unpolitical task ("Nobody can object to our mission," says one liaison staffer), the "fresh air office" as it has come to be known, is expanding and branching out. Baroody has added four professionals and several intergovernmental consultants to his staff.

Liaison conferences have been held not only in the White House but in places such as Portland, Ore., where 600 people recently met with President Ford, Secretary of Treasury William Simon, environmental protection chief Russell Train, etc. Next on line, apparently, is a program that would have President Ford, a la Abe Lincoln, "meet with three to four private citizens on a regular basis for private talks."

The program, perhaps, involves risks. Meeting the public nose-to-nose can be troublesome. In Portland, as example, Russell Train was stopped dead and could not muster a composed reply when an environmentalist asked him if it was wise to allow energy concerns to expend as much energy extracting energy (such as coal) as the extracted source will provide. The answer, if there is one, is not currently listed on the EPA's handy list of problem solvers.

But despite such embarassments, the public liaison program enjoys favor at the current White House. There is even some talk among low ranking aides about "stopping people on the street, introducing the President, and asking for viewpoints."

If this keeps up, who knows where it could lead, maybe skinny dipping in the Potomac.

Probationer complains that no job is available

I would like to know whether it is against the law to refuse to hire someone because that person has been on probation?

Recently I applied for a job at a chain of neighborhood grocery stores. It was the third application I had submitted in nine months.

Although I have called the firm several times I have never been able to see the personnel manager.

Several other people have been hired in stores where I could have worked.

I have found out that the reason I cannot obtain work there is because I am on probation. I feel this is unfair. I am on probation for cashing a check without sufficient funds.

My probation record is good. I have four children to support and I'm willing to work any shift. —B.B., Ontario.

Brent Hogshead, deputy labor commissioner for the State of California, says it is not against the law to refuse to hire a person because he is on probation.

In his opinion, however, it is immoral and unfair.

When we called your home, we learned that you are a nurse's aide who lost your job in a layoff.

Nearly three months ago I ordered a set of baseball cards to go with a baseball game—the kind you play in the living room.

During the following month I had all my mail forwarded to a vacation address in Milwaukee.

The card set did not come to this address.

Three weeks ago I wrote a letter of complaint to the game company asking that the set be forwarded to me or that I receive a refund. Neither the cards nor the money has arrived.—A.H., Montclair.

We got an answer to our letter to the firm in eight days. You received your cards two days later.

The company claimed that your package was originally mailed four days after you placed the order but it was returned because you were elsewhere. Fourth class mail is not forwardable.

When you provided the company with an updated address, the set of cards was remailed, according to the firm.

You said a month had elapsed between the date the firm claimed it had remailed your package and the day you received it.

You doubted that the second mailing had been done on the date stated. We called the post office to find out how long it should take a fourth class mailing to arrive from Pennsylvania, where the firm is located. About eight days, we were told.

Is there any association where one can find out about hospital charges?

I would like to find out for future reference.

When one is suddenly ill and rushed to a hospital, he cannot stop to think about comparing charges.

Recently such an illness did occur. The bill was excessively high.

When the two-page bill was sent, some of the charges could not be explained by the hospital office staff as many things were itemized by initials only.

In a comparison of rooms only with another hospital in the area, the charge at the first hospital was found to be much higher.—Mrs. L. B., Diamond Bar.

A reply from Leon Hauck, director of association services at the Hospital Council of Southern California, was to the effect that no organization makes such a survey.

He pointed out that in event of serious illness, you would be taken to the hospital where your physician is a staff member.

If you were an accident victim, you would be taken by ambulance to the nearest hospital.

Complaints about a specific hospital may be addressed to Ms. Randy Allmon, hospital relations coordinator. The address is 6255 Sunset Blvd., Los Angeles, 90028.

ANN LANDERS

Doctor makes fervent plea to parents to keep tots from playing in streets

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After a long, hard day at the hospital (I am chief of surgery), I picked up the paper and turned to your column. I read the letter from the woman whose brother committed suicide after he had run over a child who was playing in the street.

This morning I had to tell a mother that her beautiful, blue-eyed four-year-old son died on the table. He, too, was riding a tricycle in the street. His little body was so entangled in the trike that the boy and the trike were laid together on the stretcher.

I can't count the times I've been called to the emergency room to face sobbing parents whose child was playing in the street. May I pose a question to every parent who is reading this letter: "Do you want your child to live to adulthood?" Not one will say, "No." But I warn you, the next time you allow your child to play in the street or take his trike out to ride it wherever he pleases, it might be the last time you will see him alive. Sign me—Tired M.D.

Dear M.D.: Neither of us will ever know how many little lives you saved today. I hope it will help to make up for the ones you've lost on the table.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You have always taken the position that a young woman need not give her fiance "the names and number of all the players." Your advice is, "Keep your mouth shut about past indiscretions. It's nobody's business."

Does this go for an out-of-wedlock child? When I was 15 I had a son and put him up for adoption. I want to do what's right. Please advise me. —Settling Down

Dear S.D.: A live child can hardly be considered an "indiscretion." Your fiance should be told—and the sooner the better.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Today a young girl telephoned and said she wanted to meet my husband and that he had refused to see her. She is his out-of-wedlock daughter. I learned about this girl a few years ago but not from my husband. The child's mother came to see me. My husband is aware of that little visit because I told him at the time.

Now he is terribly upset that the girl would have the nerve to telephone me and try to inflict herself on our family. I need your counsel on how to deal with the problem.

Should I tell our children? They are 12, 14, 16 and 18. I'm afraid if I don't tell them they will hear it from someone else. All this happened 21 years ago, before I even knew my husband.

The girl left me her phone number but he refused to take it. He is a truck driver and frequently passes through the town where this girl and her mother live. He has never called them so I figure he really has no interest.

My husband is a great guy and I love him dearly. What should be done? —Concerned

Dear C: Your children should be told about their half-sister, but this is your husband's responsibility, not yours. I hope he will accept it like a man.

Since he has made it clear that he wants nothing to do with the girl, don't pressure him to see her. And don't invite her over to meet your children, or you'll have real trouble. It is apparent that your husband wants to forget this part of his past and you should respect his wishes. (P.S. I get the impression that he had never given the girl's mother any financial help and THIS is wrong, unless, of course, she turned it down.)

Wealthy find depression depressing

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

One of the minor compensations about a national disaster like our present economy is the knowledge that "we're all in this together." Not much comfort, I'll grant, but maybe jost a leedle.

Where did the Statue of Liberty ever get that crummy slogan, "Give me your poor . . ." Poor we got! Send us your rich people.

In the midst of this depression let's not mince words — DEPRESSION! — everybody hurts, lower class, middle class and feelthy rich, each at his own level of suffering. For the poor it's the sugarless breakfast; for the middle class, no summer vacation; for the wealthy, a lousy Chrysler instead of a Bentley. We should all suffer so.

While you are lining your soleless shoes with cardboard, consider the plight of the poor rich man. The Rolls-Royce has gone from $33,000 to $53,000, causing more than a few second thoughts about that third car. (What ever happended to Rabid Transit?) The Mercedes-Benz is still moving well ($9,000-$21,500) according to local dealers, but the next popular vehicle may well be the Tumbrel Two.

America's wealthy aristocrats are suffering right there along of you and me. Wines like Chateu Lafite-Rothschild, Haut Brion and Chateau Latour have dropped off; men's $450-$700 business suits are not selling well, and homes once eagerly sought at $300,000-$400,000 are now going begging at $200,000-$250,000. If you can call it begging.

Although caviar continues to sell well and people are standing in line for $25,000 memberships to the Hillcrest Country Club, there is evidence that the nation's latter-day nobility is beginning to listen to the tumbrels, to heed the storm signals flapping in the dark sky of our economy. Foreign travel has dropped off; tickets at $50 to charity dinners are getting hard to unload; private clubs are lowering their membership fees. Where will it all end?

Fewer big society bashes are being scheduled, and they're not as bashy as they were a few years ago. The sale of yatchts is down. More and more fur-clad upper-crusts are buying their baubles and bangles on time payment. Designer Marilyn Lewis angrily shut down her swank Cardinali Boutique in Beverly Hills because her customers owed her $6,000 to $9,000. Can you imagine your wife running up a $9,000 bill at a dress shop? Well, sure, I know you can — but I mean, wow, right?

The grim, ghastly, gripping spectre of the depression is shared at every level of our society, but it's more fun to share it where your choice is between a new Porsche or a Bentley, where you have to give up Haut Brion for Mouton Rotschild, where the $6,000 Paris labels yield to "this old thing?" at $300-$200. I mean, there are LEVELS of suffering.

The depression has, however, taught even the very rich a new phrase: "How much?"

THE DOCTOR COMMENTS

Cause of ulcerative colitis unknown

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm 37. For about six years I've had a severe case of ulcerative colitis. Seldom do I see any articles about it, and I find most people don't know what it is or anything about it.

A few weeks ago when I was released from the hospital, my doctor, the leading internist in this area, suggested an operation. This involves all of my colon and part of my small intestine.

My former doctor cautioned me continually about cancer. Some of my latest spells have been more emotional and I've had vomiting. Others have suggested I try having either allergy tests made or admitting myself to the state mental hospital for help before I go through the operation. What would you suggest?

DEAR READER — I wish there were a good answer. The cause of ulcerative colitis is not known. And, we know just about as much about its treatment.

As you know the most common features of the disease are diarrhea, often with blood and mucus, and lower abdominal crampy pain. The symptoms are variable. Some people even have changes in the rectum or lower colon and have few, if any, noticeable symptoms. Others have severe diarrhea, hemorrhage and complications such as perforation of the colon.

It can be, and no doubt in your case is, a difficult disease. It can become chronic with recurring attacks of severe diarrhea and bleeding. Weight loss is common with it.

Milk and milk products seem to cause attacks in some patients. At one time it was believed that an allergic reaction to milk might be the cause. In any case I believe any one with this problem should avoid milk and milk products and goods made with lots of milk, like milk gravy and sauces.

Some cases seem to be started off with a diarrhea infectious illness. In some ways the disease acts like the immune mechanism of the body has gone haywire and the body is trying to reject the lining of the colon as foreign tissue. The disease, incidentally, can involve the rectum, colon, and terminal part of the small intestine.

I can't judge what you shiuld do about surgery, but I can suggest that your fine internist has a good basis for his recommendation. Six years of trouble with involvement of the colon and terminal ileum tells me you have a severe case. Many patients do surprisingly well after surgery.

Cancer of the colon is much more common in patients with ulcerative colitis. And, less than 30 per cent of them survive five years if a cancer occurs. That is why your first doctor was concerned.

Don't waste your time on allergy tests. And, forget about the emotional problems, they often go along with the disease, and you may find out that your problems in this area are markedly improved when you have improved physically. Now, not everyone needs surgery for ulcerative colitis, but in selected cases that have not gone into remission and have not done well with good medical treatment, then it is often a good choice.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of The Progress-Bulletin, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on spastic colon, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for the "Spastic Colon" booklet.

Divorce is most likely in second year

Those matrimonial experts who study the statistics contend divorce is most likely to occur, if ever, in the second year of marriage.

DO YOU BUY the claim that your facial characteristics indicate something about your personality? Neither do I. Still, one who purports to know contends gracefully curved eyelashes almost invariably are a sign of a calm and relaxed person.

A PHYSICAL CULTURE expert contends your best sleep comes when you lie without a pillow flat on your back with your feet apart and your hands palms up at your sides. Maybe so, don't know. However, it's common knowledge that's also the position in which you're most likely to snore. Did I tell you the best cure for snoring? Sew an empty thread spool in the middle of the back of your pajamas.

PRESIDENTS

Q. "Has any of our presidents ever used a pseudonym while in office?"

A. Not exactly. Dwight David Eisenhower was born David Dwight Eisenhower. Hiram Ulysses Grant changed his moniker to Ulysses Simpson Grant. And Stephen Grover Cleveland, Thomas Woodrow Wilson and John Calvin Coolidge dropped their first names. That's about it.

ASTEREOGNOSIS, that's the name of one peculiar human abnormality. It's rare. The patient afflicted with same can't recognize the shape of anything just by touch alone. For instance, a pencil feels no different than a pineapple.

YAWNS

Once wrote that science still doesn't know why yawns are contagious. And wrote further that the eyes of a person who yawns usually start to sparkle immediately thereafter. And wrote finally that just about anybody who read the foregoing facts would yawn within the next minute or so. Numerous kindly customers later told me it was true, that they yawned on cue as suggested. That was good. But several said it was nothing new, they always yawned when they read this piece. That was bad.

DID YOU KNOW that mother ducks talk to their ducklings even before said offspring are hatched? And those ducklings talk back, evidently. So recent studies seem to prove. Even though put into an incubator a few hours before hatching, those ducklings later seem to recognize their mama by the noise she makes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You have all the drive that's necessary to gain your ends now if you're willing to charge ahead full-blast to attain your goal.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll have to be a bit firmer than usual today with those you deal with so they know you'll mean business when you speak your mind.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) No one other than yourself is going to stand up for you today in what you feel is your just due. Insist upon what you feel is owed you.

Your Birthday Nov. 23

This year you will get certain things that should have come to you before, but failed to due to strange circumstances. These things will make you more secure as an individual.

Ace of spades his lucky card

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The late P. Hal Sims was asked if he had a superstitious feeling about some particular card. He thought a while and replied: "The ace of spades is lucky for me."

Today's hand illustrates another of Hal's superstitions. He believed firmly that if you did not want a certain opponent to get the lead, you should play him for holding a singleton king and refuse to finesse against his partner.

Playing at three notrump, Hal carefully won the heart lead with the king not the ace. He had to attack diamonds. If East got in with the king, East would read the ace as a falsecard from ace-king. He would not know if the king were a forced play; a falsecard from king-queen or a normal play from ace-king.

In any event Hal saw that his contract was safe unless East got in with the king of diamonds; shifted to a spade honor and found West with Hal's lucky ace of spades.

So at trick two Hal led the jack of diamonds; went right up with dummy's ace; plucked East's singleton King and came home with the bacon.

Insights on campus today

"But how could you supposedly intelligent guys get yourself into that box in the first place?"

My questioner was the president of a gaint midwestern steel company and the "guys" referred to are my fellow college and university administrators.

The "box" is the present status of higher education — over-built public schools, struggling private institutions, fewer students, rising tuitions, etc.

My reply was three-fold. (1) Poor planning. Legislators and educators in public schools did not forsee the population leveling off. They planned as though growth would never slow, much less stop.

(2) The "more is better" syndrome. State A raced to beat State B in building public facilities for higher education. Politicians in various communities within each state caught the competitive spirit and did likewise.

(3) Not all of us blew it. Some private institutions are very healthy, thank you. And our futures are quite bright.

And then it was my turn to ask my steel producing friend the same question: "How could you supposedly intelligent guys get yourself into that box in the first place??"

Box No. 1. A world-wide energy crisis that threatens our very existence.

Box No. 2. Polluttion and all of its various ramifications.

Box No. 3. Just a small one, but a goodie. The steel industry is predicting a serious coal shortage if 500 mines shut down for failure to meet new safety regulations. Without coal they cannot make steel.

The mines have been declared unsafe because of a shortage of "roof bolts", used to shore up ceilings in mine shafts.

Roof bolt manufacturers say they can't get the steel rods to make the bolts.

Steelmakers say they cut back on rod production because price controls made it uneconomical to make them.

No steel rods, no roof bolts. No roof bolts, the mines close. No mines, no coal. No coal, no steel. No steel, no rods. No rods, no . . . Well, it all begins to sound like a giant no-no.

"Really, I'm very intereted. How could you supposedly intelligent guys . . . "

Graffiti declines

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — The decline in graffiti writing is saving the University of California $10,000 a year.

W. A. Parish, an assistant administrator at UC Berkeley, said that last year it cost $20,000 to sandblast graffiti from the granite facades of the campus. This year, he said, the costs have been reduced by half.

He credited the reduction on the decline of indignation that led to the wall writings and a secret weapon—a sealing compound that allows surfaces to be restored to pristine condition with a simple swabbing.

Survivor recalls . . .

Dr. Herbert Meisel, Evans' stepfather, said Terry was an "average student who had no problems. He had just graduated from Walnut High School, and was to be married."

Dick Laughter, a Walnut city councilman, said Evans worked for him at his liquor store and was a "good, harworking kid."

Allred, meanwhile, was "lucky not to be killed," according to Sgt. Adams, who has not spoken to the youth in two years.

Now 21, the Upland youth attends a local junior college and works part-time as a clerk in a garden shop.

Allred clearly remembers the November evening when he substituted for a friend, and worked until 10 p.m. at a self-service station on Foothill Boulevard in Upland, across from Memorial Park.

"I get chills every time I think about it," he said recently. "If I hadn't done exactly what I did, it would have been curtains."

Two men drove into the gas station as Allred, working alone, was preparing to close for the night. They asked if he could fix a tire, but Allred says he refused, because "I wanted to go home."

One of the men pulled a gun and demanded money. Later, after he took $60 in cash, the robber ordered Allred to open several store rooms at the back of the station. Allred said he didn't have the keys to the rooms, so the men told him to turn around, and shot him.

"I heard an explosion," Allred recalled, "and there was a warm spot at the back of my head. Things were clicking, and I realized he was shooting at me. I cringed and put my hands up at the sides of my head, and was shot in the hand."

By that time, Allred was running around the corner, "setting a new record for the 100-yard dash."

The youth raced to a nearby drive-in restaurant, and employes there called police.

Surprisingly, one bullet had glanced off his skull, and the other went through the ring finger on his right hand.

When the ambulance arrived, Allred was able to walk to it.

He was in San Antonio Community Hospital for four days, but all the doctors did was put bandages on his two wounds. Today, one can see very little evidence of Allred being shot.

Funny thing is, Allred did have keys to the store rooms at the station, he said, "but I was in no mood to cooperate, I thought, if they put me in a room, I'd never get out."

He's the only survivor in the two shootings because, Allred believes' "I had room to run."

Since that time, he has had dreams in which "I tense up. I wonder if the killers are around, and if they would come after me."

He does not like to drive by the gas station where he formerly worked, because "I feel funny about it."

It was not mere coincidence that Allred, a Mormon, decided to leave Upland to do missionary work in several Southern states, in the summer of 1972. "I decided I wouldn't mind being out of the area."

He returned home last August, but is planning to attend college in Utah, very soon.

Allred appreciates life these days much more than he did before. "It sounds corny, but somebody up there was watching over me."

Profit funds withdrawn by employes

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C (UPI) — Taking advantage of a provision in a profit-sharing plan, employes of R.J. Reynolds Industries here have withdrawn between million and $100 million and are using it to buy new cars, color television sets and pay off loans.

Reynolds officials, while declining to specify how much has been paid out of the plan, said it distributed the money to its employes, from hourly workers to executives, last week by mail.

The profit-sharing plan was inaugurated in 1956 with only company contributions going into the fund. In the 1960s the plan was changed to allow employes to withdaw all the money credited to their account, including funds contributed by employes under provisions of another change in the plan.

'It became apparent that more and more employes were taking all of their money out of their accounts," said a Reynolds spokesman. He said the firm decided to terminate the plan and give participants an increase in pay equal to the amount the firm had been contributing.

In addition, the firm also instituted a new stock purchase plan for its workers.

A sales official of Froelich Cadillac Co. said "We've had a very good week this week." He attributed some of the increase in sales to the Reynolds move and said, "Many of them have had their checks with them when they looked, believe it or not."

A spokesman for Wachovia Bank and Trust co. headquartered here, said the firm has received several million dollars in deposits from Reynolds workers and many of them were using the money to pay off loans, bolster checking and savings accounts or buy savings certificates.

Ask $6 million in airliner death

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A $6 million wrongful death suit was filed against Sierra Pacific Airlines Wednesday on behalf of a 2-year-old boy whose father was killed in a plane crash.

The Superior Court suit was filed by Roberta Polst on behalf of Jason Hoffman, sole survivor to the estate of Alan William Hoffman, who died in a plane crash March 13. Mrs. Polst, named guardian-at-law by the court, also named Mammoth Mountain Ski resort as codefendant in her suit.

Thirty-six persons were killed when the chartered aircraft, owned and operated by the airline and the resort, crashed into a mountain shortly after takeoff from the Bishop Airport.

Cancer victims bounce back as volunteers

Mrs. Christ said that she finds her volunteer service as a visitor in the laryngectomy program is satisfying too, because of the face-to-face service feature. A remarkably determined woman with a fine sense of humor, she underwent a laryngectomy in June 1973 and mastered esophageal speech to return to her job as a sales manager in only four months.

"The smog doesn't bother me as much now—I breathe better than I did when I breathed through my nose," she said.

A divorcee with four married daughters, Mrs. Christ lives alone. Her job involves spending a lot of time on the telephone, making telephone sales, during her 50-hour work week but she insists that the esophageal speech is no problem in her work.

Mrs. Christ is a busy woman. "On my day off I usually clean house and have the children over for dinner," she remarks. Two of her daughters live nearby and she comments with a twinkle, "I get to baby sit any night I want to and some I don't want to. My grandsons are both 3 and they undestand that I can't yell at them."

In spite of her busy schedule she finds time for the volunteer visiting program for laryngectomy patients. The program is much like the Reach-to-Recovery program. It too is designed to give moral support to the new patient and show that it is possible to live a normal, active life.

The visitor calls upon the new patient, with the physician's permission, and brings a gift kit with a number of booklets, an emergency first aid card, a magic slate and a stoma bib, a protective cloth that covers the opening in the neck. She shows, by simply being there, that an active life is again possible after the operation.

"The fear that the cancer will reoccur is always present. You live with that fear," she says. "The doctor says that if cancer does not reoccur within a year it is unlikely that it will but I'm more conscious of cancer now."

Mrs. Christ looks and feels healthier than she did before her illness. "I've gained 80 pounds. Because I quit smoking I eat like a horse now and I hardly ate at all before." Prior to her bout with cancer she barely weighed 90 pounds.

Mrs. Lessard is not a cancer patient herself but she spends many hours a week helping those who are. As transportation coordinator for the Pomona area she arranges for volunteers to drive cancer patients to and from treatment facilities.

"We need drivers desperately for the patients who have no cars or no families that can take them. Some of the patients are missing appointments because they have no way to get there and with radiation treatment the daily schedule is important to their recovery," she said.

Many of the volunteer drivers are retired people she noted, while others are housewives and a few are employed people who do the volunteer work on a week day off.

"It's good volunteer work for those who like people. The cancer patients are cheerful, interesting people and you get to be friends when you take the same people repeatedly. And then you have the satisfaction of knowing that you are doing something that is desperately needed," she said.

There is a volunteer job available for everyone in the rapidly expanding program, according to Nancy Brown, field representative for the Northeast Los Angeles County area for the society.

Besides the Reach-to-Recovery and laryngetomy programs there is a similiar program for colostomy patients and the new CanCervive for other cancer patients.

Volunteers who have not been cancer patients themselves work as office volunteers, making dressing units, help with education and promotion and work in fund raising, as well as work as drivers in the transportation program.

Further information about local programs may be obtained by calling the Pomona office, 623-0616 week days from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. To volunteer to assist with any of the programs, the same number may be called.

Farmer suing rainmaker for downpour that ruined crops

CARO, Mich. (UPI) — The rainmaker was so successful, farmer Michael Reinbold said, that five inches of rain and hail came crashing down on a clear day.

The storm, Reinbold said, ruined his corn, bean and beet crops and cost him $37,500.

And that is why Reinbold said he is suing Dr. Irving P. Krick of Palm Springs, Calif., a professional rainmaker who once served as chief of the U.S. Army Air Force's weather forecasting office.

"We're saying you shouldn't mess around with the environment unless you know what consequences your messing around can cause," said Reinbold, a 30-year-old farmer who owns 800 acres of farmland in this rich area north of Detroit.

The case is currently underway in Tuscola County circuit court.

On July 11, 1972, the day of the storm, Reinbold said, Krick was employed by a group of farmers 150 miles away at Holland, who were reported to have paid $60,000 with silver iodide.

"Neither me, nor my 64-year-old father or his father had ever seen anything like that storm before," Reinbold said.

"It was just this little black cloud that came straight at us, with sun shining all around."

When it passed two hours later, Reinbold said, his crops were destroyed by five inches of rain and hail the size of golf balls.

Krick's lawyers contend the rainmaking operation had nothing to do with the Tuscola County storm.

Tax survey

CHICAGO (UPI) — A survey by the Advisory Commission of Intergovernmental Relations shows that the percentage of taxpayers who think state governments give taxpayers the most for their tax dollars rose from 18 per cent in 1973 to 24 per cent in 1974.

Wall Street Briefs

NEW YORK (UPI) — Banks around the country are enabling big corporations to earn an extra day's income on perhaps a $1 billion a year by something called "the extended disbursement float."

Briefly, the system involves keeping checking accounts in distant banks and paying bills drawn on those banks so it will take an extra day or two for the check to return to the home office bank for clearing, explains Business Week magazine. The magazine says Federal Reserve officials say there is nothing illegal about the procedure but said "it could draw the attention of Congress" and cause the enactment of a law to stop the practice.

NEW YORK (UPI) — There no longer is any doubt about the United States being in recession and the word "depression" is being heard more and more frequently, Robert G. Wade, Jr., a vice president of Drexel Burnham & Co., said Thursday. He told guests at the investment house's annual business outlook luncheon that Drexel Burnham expects a further decline of 6½ per cent per annum in the economy by mid-1975.

KING OF PRUSSIA, Pa. (UPI) — Aston Martin Lagonda, Inc., importer of British customized luxury automobiles, said Thursday that the Aston Martin 326 cubic engine V8 engine had passed all the 1975 pollution standards of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. Rex Woodgate, president of the firm, said it was the first British engine to pass the tests. Aston Martin hopes to import four of the luxury cars weekly.

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Kaiser Industries, Inc., said Thursday it is still exploring the possibility of a merger with its 57.5 per cent owned subsidiary, Kaiser Steel Corp. The talks were first announced last June. The matter was again gone into at a board meeting last week but no actions was taken.

Two okay after chuting from jet

EDWARDS AFB (UPI) — Two men ejected from an Air Force T38 Wednesday after the aircraft's landing gear wouldn't lower, the Air Force said.

Pilot David M. Bittenbinder, 32, and photographer Peter Brannock, 26, parachuted to safety. The disabled jet then crashed in a remote area about two miles from the airbase's main runway.

Dixie's origin

The song "Dixie" was written by minstrel show composer Dan Emmett.

Peru asks U.S. to withdraw Peace Corps

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government of Peru has asked the United States to withdraw all 137 Peace Corps workers from that country, a State Department spokesman said today.

Peru asked the U.S. embassy in Lima recently to have the American workers withdrawn as quickly as possible, saying that their work, primarily agricultural development projects, can be done just as well by Peruvians.

But State Department officials denied as "totally untrue" an assertion by Peruvian President Juan Velasco Alvarado that two U.S. officials were asked to leave Peru in the late 1960s because they were found to be CIA agents. Velasco said his government has expelled several CIA officials since he took over in 1968.

The two officials mentioned by Velasco were Ernest V. Siracusa, who was the No. 2 man in the U.S. embassy in Peru in the late 1960s, and Frank V. Ortiz Jr., who was head of the political section of the embassy. Both men are career foreign service officers and department officials insisted they never worked for the CIA.

Ask Dr. Brothers

Try new approach

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband and I are both retired, we've saved enough money to travel and we're in relatively good physical health. There's nothing standing in our way and we could have a really wonderful time together in our old age. The problem is that I'm making almost any trip impossible because of my fear of flying. Even when train trips are suggested, some part of me turns into a stick-in-the-mud and I want to stay home.

I love my husband, I'd like to please him and I'd like to be able to enjoy new experiences, but I find that I'm frightened in a way that I don't really understand. I'd like to change and get over anxieties that stand in our way. I just keep wondering if the old saying about not being able to teach old dogs new tricks is true. — F.L.

Dear F.L.: Forget the old saying because it definitely has been disproven many, many times. If they are interested and if they can keep an open mind, people can learn as long as they live. By admitting your problem, you've already taken a first step toward enlarging your life and overcoming some of your fears.

Dr. Wallace Wilkins of the University of Miami says that a fear, or a phobia, is maintained as long as it serves the individual. As soon as you can show a person how a fear serves him, he can attack the problem.

People can do a great deal to overcome their fears by trying to approach the feared object a little at a time. In some major cities there are courses given where people who are afraid of flying are gradually introduced to planes. A short trip, in a proper mental state before you get on the plane, may help to overcome your fears. Gradually, you will find that you can take longer trips with only a normal amount of anxiety.

What you have to try to do is to make the mind change signals. Some individuals have learned to clap their hands loudly when they detect the beginning of fear. Others may snap their fingers or tap their feet. This helps the mind to become focused on something other than the fear.

Fears and phobias are apt to be self-perpetuating because the more we fear, the more we avoid the thing we fear, and the worse the fear becomes. As long as you avoid a situation, you are not learning to react appropriately in the situation, and thus you're robbing yourself of the opportunity to find out that there's really little to fear. Boredom and lack of stimulation can serve to nourish fears. A phobia or fear may provide a kind of substitute stimulation.

Usually, the person who fears traveling is uneasy in any new situation where he feels threatened or powerless. People can change their patterns at almost any age, however, and they can learn to welcome new experiences and can enjoy learning from them. It's dangerous to become too territory-bound because it tends to limit growth.

One of the most important ways of learning is through new experience. We learn from diversity and if we spent our lives doing nothing but what we had done the day before and the day before that, our lives would become monotonous. We would become bored with ourselves and would, in turn, be boring to others.

Now is the time to take a giant step and begin, a little at a time, to try to overcome your fears. When you feel fear coming over you, try to do something that demands your concentration and gives you a feeling that you are in control of some act even if it's only counting numbers on a page or snapping your fingers.

Progress-Bulletin PREP PREVIEW

Norco at Bonita High, 8 p.m.

Defense and breaks should determine the outcome of this first round clash of the 1974 CIF football playoffs.

The Hacienda League champs, Bonita High (8-1 overall, 6-1 league), takes its No. 7 2-A rating into tonight's 8 p.m. kickoff at Bearcat Bowl against San Andreas League runners-up Norco (7-1 overall), ranked sixth.

Linemen Ross Thompson and Rick Carlton, linebacker Lencho Nava and defensive back Bruce Hines lead a Bonita defense that is the toughest to score on in the valley. In nine games the Bearcats are yielding an average of just .58 points per game and only in the San Dimas loss (14-0) did they give up two touchdowns.

The Cougars, who finished second behind Arlington (8-1), are led by quarterback Curt Darr and running backs Steve Nugent and Randy Campbell. Norco likes to run from a Power-I but have a fine passer In Darr.

The H.L.'s Most Valuable Player and first team running back, Harold Drake and Brad Frick, try to guide a Veer offense that averages 13.9 points a game.

Claremont vs. Santa Ana Valley at Santa Ana Bowl, 8 p.m.

The big question in this game tonight (8 p.m.) will be whether Claremont can stop Santa Ana Valley's Myron White.

The Wolfpack, making its first appearance in the CIF playoffs since winning the San Antonio League championship in 1972, has a monumental task.

White has rushed for over 900 yards this year, despite missing 2½ games due to an injury.

If the Wolves can stop the 6-1, 180 pound tailback, they may be able to give the Freeway League co-champions a struggle.

Claremont will be coming into the playoffs with a sub-.500 record of 4-5 and a two-game losing streak. But the Wolfpack boasts the SAL's Offensive Player of the Year in quarterback Kent Stalwick, who can both pass and run effectively.

Santa Ana Valley enters the playoffs with a 6-1-2 season record and ranked No. 8 in the CIF 3-A competition.

White is Valley's main offensive attack, but the Falcons also have a good throwing arm in quarterback Fred Morales (32 of 64 for 604 yards and five touchdowns). Also fullback Wilbert Haslip (6-0, 195) will be tough to stop.

The Santa Ana Bowl can be reached by taking the Santa Ana Freeway south to the 17th St. turnoff. Take 17th west to Bristol Ave., then go south to either Center Dr. or 6th St., which border the Bowl.

San Dimas vs. El Dorado at Valencia High, 8 p.m.

Perhaps for the first time this season, San Dimas High's defense won't be the 'key' factor. The Saints' playoff future will rest with their offense.

Coach Bob Baiz' team, which allowed just 7.8 points a game, faces its toughest opponent of the season tonight at 8 p.m. at Valencia High in Placentia. They tackle the 2-A's No. 1 ranked team, El Dorado High (9-0).

Quarterback Kevin Pokrajac and running backs Richard Burke and Paul Willman will be trying to score on the division's (2-A) only undefeated team, which has allowed only 8.5 points per game.

Bob Farra, who has passed for 1,234 yards and 11 touchdowns, quarterbacks the Orange League champion Hawks and has James Haynie, Henry Arambula and Jim Michael in his backfield.

Valencia High is located at 500 N. Bradford Ave. in Placentia.

His name is Richard Lee Petty, but in the South he is known simply as King Richard.

In a sports world where flash-in-the pans are commonplace and superstars few and far between, Petty has been, is and likely will continue to be THE star of stock car racing in the United States.

He has started more races, won more races, won more money and won more championships than any man in the 26-year history of NASCAR's top attraction.

His car number, 43, is as famous as Joe Namath's 12 or Henry Aaron's 44.

And when America's greatest stock car drivers take the green flag in NASCAR's 500 at Ontario Motor Speedway Sunday, Richard Petty will be the man to beat.

Oh, David Pearson and Bobby Allison will have their legions of followers. So will Cale Yarborough and Buddy Baker. Some will pick A. J. Foyt. But most everyone will know Petty will be the man to watch.

Petty paced a field of 55 drivers Thursday in practice runs for Sunday's 500, edging Pearson with a speed of 150.753 miles per hour. Pearson came up with a top speed of 150.502 m.p.h.

Qualifying for the 500 begins today at 1 p.m.

Ever since he was named Grand National's Rookie of the Year in 1958, Petty has been in the stock car spotlight.

He has taken the checkered flag 164 times, nearly twice as often as his closest rival (Pearson with 84), and he's now closing in on the $2 million mark in career purse money.

Petty's emergence as a superstar really came as no surprise. His father, Lee, won 54 Grand National races and was a three-time national champion.

"I guess I was about 12 when I started to fool with cars," said Richard. "I could take off some parts, even if I couldn't get them back on the way daddy wanted. By the time I was 15 or 16 I was building engines and stuff. It's just like the farmer who teaches his boy to ride a mule and then to get behind it."

Petty got his first Grand National win during the 1960 season and two years later he cashed checks totaling $52,960. By 1971, big money had come to Grand National racing and Petty took home a record $309,225.

"When I started, they only had two 500-mile races a year. A car cost about $10,000 then and more than $25,000 today. They were using two or three men crews. Now you use four or five," said Petty.

Petty's first Grand National championship came in 1964. In '67, he won 27 of 48 races, including a record 10 straight, en route to his second title. His other championships came in '71, '72 and this season.

He has notched 10 wins in '74, but would like to add the Ontario 500 to the record books. Foyt has won both Grand National races held at Ontario.

Petty's STP Dodge is always in the forefront in new ideas in stock car racing. He was the first driver to put a muffler on his car, the first to use a wide-angle mirror and this year he'll have an exhaust gas regulator on No. 43.

As champions go, No. 43 is No. 1.

Stanford, Cal expect 65,000

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — About 65,000 persons are expected to turn out Saturday for the 77th Big Game between Stanford and California.

With California having a chance for its best season in 23 years, the campus supply of tickets for Saturday's game is already gone.

"That big crowd," said running back Howard Strickland, "will just be great for us. We've played before big crowds this year, but this time they'll be rooting for us."

Reminded that a huge group of Stanford fans also would attend, Strickland said they won't have a good time.

DAVIS FINDS A BIG HOLE

Al Davis of the Hawaiians finds a big hole as he goes into the end zone for the first Hawaiian score in Thursday's 32-14 win over the Southern California Sun at Anaheim Stadium.

Three stars don't report for finale

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

ANAHEIM — The Southern California Sun's season ended in eclipse Thursday night at Anaheim Stadium.

The visiting Hawaiians defeated the crippled Sun, 32-14. The Hawaiians (10-11) now advance to the second round of the playoffs next week at Birmingham. The Americans (15-5) had a bye this week.

For the Sun (13-8), the season is finished an on a very sour note.

Not only did the Anaheim-based entry lose four of its last five games, but Thursday night's demise began two hours before the game was due to start.

That was the time it was discovered that running back Kermit Johnson and offensive guard-tackle Booker Brown were missing.

The pair were two-thirds of a high priced bonus package signed by the Sun before the NFL held its draft. The third player, James McAlister, was out of the game anyway with injuries, but he, too failed to put in an appearance. When a team is going into the playoffs, an injured member is usually present to urge his teammates on. But, like Johnson and Brown, McAlister was a no-show.

Among the rumors floating around were, (1) the trios' agent had pulled them because they had not been paid for last week's game with Florida; (2) the three had an offer from the NFL and were trying to break their contract.

The only announcement the club made was that Johnson and Brown had been suspended. McAlister was not on the active roster and technically did not miss the game.

"We had absolutely no word of any kind from these players," said general manager Curly Morrison. "The first we learned of it was at 5 p.m. when they didn't show for tapeing. I tried to reach them and their agent and was not able to contact anyone. I had to do something so we could bring a couple of reserves, so I temporarily suspended them and notified the league office."

The players activated, lineman Ed Foster and defensive back Eric Johnston, saw little action.

Brown and Johnson had practiced every day with the Sun through Wednesday and McAlister had been in for treatment of his bruised knee. According to reports, everything was fine the last time the trio were with the club and there was no indication of any desire not to play.

So the Sun went into the playoffs without it's best runner, Johnson, it's best receiver McAlister, one of its best linemen, Brown, and injuries that put several more key players, quarterback Tony Adams (shoulder), wide receiver Dave Williams (sprained ankle), tight end Dave Parks (back) and star defensive tackle Dave Rollar (charley horse) at far less than peak performance.

With a sore-armed passer, the three top receivers (McAlister, Williams and Parks) out or injured, the two best running backs out and the best defensive lineman only at 50 per cent efficiency, the Sun made a surprisingly good showing.

After spotting the Hawaiians 17 points on an interception and two bad punts, the Sun came back to draw within three points, 17-14, before succumbing.

Trojans a solid choice

LOCAL-NATIONAL Sports

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — University of Southern California is a two-touchdown choice over UCLA's Veer T Bruins Saturday to wrap up its third straight Rose Bowl trip and seventh New Year's Day appearance at Pasadena, Calif., in nine years.

USC coach John McKay, whose seventh-ranked Trojans face Notre Dame here next week, has watched his team wallop the Bruins the past two years, 23-13 as underdogs in the Pacific-8 decider last season and 24-7 enroute to the national championship in 1972.

"I believe USC is the best team in the country when they want to play," said first-year UCLA coach Dick Vermeil, a former Los Angeles Rams' assistant.

"I coach our team and I let the other guy coach his," said McKay. "You're not going to get me to comment on what he (Vermeil) says. I don't talk about other teams."

A near-capacity crowd of 90,000 is expected for the 1:05 p.m. PST kickoff at the Coliseum for a rivalry which began with a 76-0 USC romp in 1929. The Trojans have a 24-13-6 edge over the Bruins.

USC goes into the game with a 5-0-1 Pac-8 record and a 7-1-1 overall mark while UCLA will go onto the field in its regular season finale with a 4-1-1 conference mark and a 6-2-2 overall record. The Bruins haven't been to the Rose Bowl since 1966 and a victory Saturday doesn't necessarily mean they'll go to Pasadena this year either

A Bruin win would clinch the Rose Bowl for UCLA only if (1) California defeats Stanford Saturday or (2) Cal and Stanford tie or (3) USC loses to Notre Dame next Saturday.

Meanwhile, even a tie would put the Trojans in the bowl.

"I'm not thinking about any formulas," said McKay, who has taken his clubs to Pasadena seven times in his previous 14 years at USC. "Our answer is to win the game. If we're not good enough to win it, we don't deserve to go to the Rose Bowl."

USC would appear ready, though. The Trojans blasted Washington 42-11 last weekend and took care of Stanford 34-10 the previous weekend.

The Trojans' Heisman Trophy candidate, Anthony Davis, needs only 10 yards Saturday to break O.J. Simpson's career rushing record of 3,423 yards. Simpson's total is the conference mark.

For his senior season, Davis, the jitterbug 5-9, 185-pound tailback, has 1,111 yards. With a 147-yard day against Washington he became the first runner in the league's 58-year history to gain more than a thousand yards in three different seasons.

"This is his best season," said McKay. "He's been just super. He's running well, catching well and blocking well. What else is there?"

Beaten at Seattle by Washington 31-9 three weeks ago, UCLA appeared ready to fall out of the Rose Bowl race. But the Bruins, with sophomore quarterback Jeff Dankworth filling in for the injured John Sciarra, bounced back with a 21-0 win over Oregon and a 33-14 victory at Oregon State last weekend.

"UCLA is by far the best team we've faced this season," said McKay

"There's no way you can beat USC just running the football," said Vermeil, who installed the Veer at UCLA this season after taking over for Pepper Rodgers. "We'll definitely have to throw the ball more."

Dankworth has tried only 21 passes this season. He's completed eight and has had two intercepted.

USC quarterback Pat Haden hasn't thrown as much this season as he did as a junior. And he hasn't been nearly as effectiive.

Haden has completed 43 of 102 passes—42 per cent—and has been intercepted eight times. Last year he hit 56 per cent of his passes—137 for 247—with 11 interceptions.

WFL owners discuss plans for second year

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Owners and prospective owners of teams in the troubled World Football League gathered today to make plans for a second season many observers suspect never will materialize.

"I think it will be a good working weekend," said John Bassett, chairman of the league's Executive Committee and owner of the Memphis Southmen.

"That's how I regard it—a work session, an education session and then a presentation on Saturday as to how we see the future of the World Football League.

"And when I say 'we,'" Bassett said, "I mean the people that have a big investment in it, the people who are still paying their bills."

Memphis is one of the few WFL clubs that has had no apparent financial problems in the league's first season. The Southmen also finished with the league's best record, 17-3, and is favored to win the World Bowl on Dec. 5.

Bassett said one of the first items of business would be a status report from the 10 existing franchises.

"You find out what solutions they think they have, find out the guys who it would appear don't have any solutions and then comes the remedial action that the strong owners intend to take," Bassett said.

Forum fight is rated even

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Mexico City's Ruben Olivares, the one-time bantamweight king, makes his first World Boxing Association featherweight title defense Saturday against Nicaragua's Alexis Arguello.

A crowd of 14,000 is expected at the Forum for the 15-rounder at 3 p.m. PST.

Olivares, 27, won his 126-pound championship last July 9 by stopping Japan's Zensuke Utagawa in seven rounds in the same Forum ring.

But the oddsmakers have rated his bout with Arguello as even money, principally because the 5-foot-9 Arguello holds a knockout win over Nova Scotia's Art Hafey.

Hafey knocked Olivares out in their first meeting and then knocked him down once while dropping a 12-round split decision here last March 4. Arguello knocked out Hafey in the fifth round at Managua last May 19.

Arguello is seeking to become his country's first world champion. The fight will be shown on television in Nicaragua and Saturday is a national holiday there.

"I will leave the predictions up to Muhammad Ali," said Olivares. "There's just one of him. But I do feel I'm going to win."

Pancho Rosales, Olivares' long-time manager, said his fighter hopes to get Bobby Chacon of Sylmar, Calif., into the ring again. Chacon, who was stopped by Olivares last year, is the World Boxing Council featherweight champion.

"I think the boxing public realizes Ruben is the legitimate champion but it would be nice to settle it once and for all," Rosales said.

Olivares has 76 victories in 81 pro starts and 69 of his wins have been by knockout. He has the greatest knockout record in the history of the bantamweight division.

Arguello sparred with Olivares three years ago at Managua. Olivares, then the bantamweight champ, knocked out Yambito Blanco in five rounds in a non-title fight in Nicaragua.

"Ruben Olivares has always been my idol," said Arguello. "To me, he was the best bantamweight boxing has ever had. I used to cut Ruben Olivares' pictures out of sports magazines and put them in scrap books. He has been my idol since I was a little kid. I consider us friends now.

"But he's got the championship I want and I'm going to try my hardest to take it from him."

An estimated 6,000 to 8,000 Nicaraguans are expected to be on hand to cheer for the challenger, who is making his first start in the United States. Arguello has a 38-3 record with 35 KOs.

Lakers greet Houston Rockets

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — The Los Angeles Lakers, off to one of their worst starts ever, meet the Houston Rockets at the Forum tonight.

The Lakers are in the Pacific Division cellar with a 5-9 mark, five full games behind the division-leading Golden State Warriors.

Laker Coach Bill Sharman, taking advantage of a four-day layoff, has inserted center Elmore Smith and forward Stan Love into the starting lineup. Smith regained his starting job from Zelmo Beaty and Love replaced swingman Pat Riley.

The team received a visit during practice Thursday from former superstar guard Jerry West. West said he wasn't worried about the team's fortunes without him.

"They'll be all right," he said. "They just have to loosen up. After all, it's basically the same team they had last year."

The Lakers will remain home to host the Washington Bullets at 7 p.m. Sunday evening before making their first Eastern trip of the season next Tuesday and Wednesday at Milwaukee and Kansas City.

MSAC hosts state cross country meet

Mt. San Antonio College hosts the 10th annual State Community College Cross Country championships Saturday over MSAC's rugged four-mile course beginning at 10 a.m.

Grossmont captured the Southern California large schools title last weekend at MSAC. The Northern California title was won by San Joaquin Delta. They will compete against four other teams from the north and the south. The southern teams include L.A. Valley, Moorpark, Fullerton and L.A. Harbor. The Northern teams are West Valley, San Jose City, American River and Fresno City.

The top large school times were turned in by Northern runners last weekend. They belong to Delta's Henry Perex (19:03) and West Valley's Matt Soomer (19:12). They aren't expected to be as fast at MSAC. Cliff Morden of Grossmont and Gil Esparaza of Moorpark clocked 19:35 and 19:50 respectively in the Southern Cal last weekend at MSAC.

The host Mounties failed to qualify for the state meet as a team, finishing seventh, but Mark Lotich will compete individually. He finished 13th last week in 20:21 in the SoCal meet.

In small schools competition DeAnza from the north and Glendale from the south won their respective regional titles. The other northern schools will be Monterey Peninsula, Skyline, Foothill and Consumnes River. The southern entires are Citrus (third place last week), Hancock, Palomar and Imperial Valley.

Again, the best times were turned in by northern runners. Paul Fredrickson of DeAnza clocked 19:34 in the northern meet. The best southern time was by Bob Thomas of Glendale with 19:26, which was the best time of the day at MSAC in the SoCal meet.

Total state scoring rankings for the past 10 years using a 10-8-6-4-2 points system for teams finishing in the top five shows MSAC No. 1 with 40 points. L.A. Valley and Grossmont are tied for second with 31 points. Pasadena, Bakersfield, Santa Ana, Fullerton, Pierce, American River and El Camino finish out the top 10 teams over the past decade.

Valley harriers compete in CIF prelims Saturday

A total of five teams and four other individuals from the valley will be competing in the CIF cross country preliminaries Saturday at Mt. San Antonio College.

San Antonio League representatives will be champion Upland and runnerup Claremont, plus Barry Boettcher of Pomona Mike Roza of Montclair.

Hacienda League teams competing in the prelims will be league champion San Dimas and runnerup Walnut, along with individuals Joel Hope and Ray Dacolias of Alta Loma.

Chaffey High will be one of the two teams representing the Citrus Belt League, where the Tigers finished runnerup to San Gorgonio.

All the action is scheduled to get underway at 1:30 p.m. with the first race of the 1-A division.

There will be two races for each of the four CIF divisions, with the final race scheduled to get the gun at 3:50 p.m.

San Dimas and Claremont are slated to race their teams in the 2:10 p.m. 2-A race, while Walnut and Upland have been entered in the 2:30 p.m. race. Boettcher and Roza will be competing in one of those two races.

Chaffey is scheduled in the last race of the day, competing under the 4-A banner.

For the meet, the five fastest teams in each race and the three fastest individuals on non-qualifying teams, provided they are among the first five finishers in their respective races, will qualify for the championship meet on Saturday Nov. 30.

San Dimas' Frank Diaz will be one guy to watch in the meet. He finished the Hacienda League dual meet season undefeated, only to lose to Hope by one stride in the finals last week. Fighting a cold, Diaz finished the two-mile plus course in 10:47 minutes.

Also keep your eyes on Upland's Mark Sorenson, who won the SAL title with a time of 10:36 last Tuesday. However, Sorenson will have the task of battling Laguna Beach's Eric Hulst, who is scheduled to run in the same race.

Pitt will still consider Liberty Bowl if offered

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Athletic Director Cas Myslinski of the University of Pittsburgh said Thursday the administration would still consider a Liberty Bowl bid if one is offered.

The Liberty Bowl committee said the winner of the Kentucky - Tennessee clash Saturday would face Maryland in the Dec. 23 bowl game in Memphis. But later the committee reportedly said Pitt had another chance at the bid should the Vols and the Wildcats tie.

The bid, apparently lost when Notre Dame defeated the Panthers 14-10 last Saturday, would still be contigent on Pitt defeating Penn State in a nationally televised game Thanksgiving Night.

Myslinski said Pitt was not disturbed by the fact the bowl committee was delaying its selection until the last possible moment.

"If I were in their place, I'd do the same thing," he said. "That's a business down there. We would have to poll the kids again to see if they'd want to do that. The administration would go along with what ever the kids would say."

San Antonio League's best

Stalwick, Kingston named

Claremont High quarterback Kent Stalwick and Ganesha High defensive guard Russell Kingston have been named the San Antonio League Players of the Year by the SAL coaches.

Stalwick, a 6-2, 185 pound senior, led the Claremont Wolfpack to a second-place finish in the league to gain the Offensive Player of the Year award. Kent, who was named to last year's all-league team on defense, compiled a total of 1349 yards in total offense this season. He completed 54 passes on 137 attempts for 695 yards and six touchdowns. Rushing, Stalwick collected 654 yards on 122 carries for five TDs.

Kingston, a 5-11, 203 pound senior, averaged seven tackles per game this year for the SAL runner-up Giants. He also recovered five fumbles and had six sacks of the opposing quarterback.

Pomona High, the two-time SAL champions, placed the most players on the first team — five. The quintet consisted of tight end Dave Zibell, offensive guard Wayne Miller, fullback Hank Zibell, defensive tackle Calvin Short and defensive back Jim Middleton.

Claremont, Ganesha, Upland, Damien and Garey each placed four players on the first team, while Chino claimed three all-leaguers and Montclair two.

Upland at Burroughs (Burbank)

Upland High really drew a "toughie" to open the CIF playoffs.

The Highlanders will be out to give Burroughs of Burbank its first loss of the season tonight at 7:30 p.m. The Scots, who finished the year with a 4-4-1 season record, will have to call on a "super" defensive performance in order to pull the upset.

Burroughs, the Foothill League champion which finished the season with an unblemished 9-0 record and ranked No. 4 in CIF 3A, not only has an explosive offense which uses both the Veer and I formations, but it also has a rugged defense.

So the Upland offense may also have its hands full. The Highlanders have some explosive speed of their own offensively. The speed will come from halfbacks Mark White and Mike Rees, while fullback Dominic Licavoli will double as a ball-carrier and a pass receiver.

Quarterbacking the Scots will be Jay Morton, who of late has been moving the team pretty well.

To reach Burroughs High, take the San Bernardino West to the Golden State Freeway going North. After reaching Burbank take the Olive ave. turnoff left to Victory Blvd. Take that street north one block to Clark Ave., and go about three blocks to the school (1650 Clark Ave.).

Canyon vs. Rowland at MSAC

Rowland High opens its quest for the CIF 2-A football title tonight at Mt. San Antonio College as the Raiders meet Canyon High of Placentia. Kickoff time is 8 p.m.

Although canyon enters tonight's playoff opener with a lack-luster 5-4 season record, Rowland is not taking the Orange County school lightly.

The Comanches are just getting over a long list of injuries and will be healthy and fired up for the Raiders. Quarterback Larry Gonsalvi leads the Comanche offense, and they have a power runner in Mark Cassaras who gained 306 yards on the ground in only five games.

Flavio Garcia directs the explosive Rowland offense. Signal caller Garcia will hope to ignite the Raider passing game, as he has a fleet of fine receivers in Don Pearce, Ron Goldman and Mike Eropkin.

Tonight's game marks the CIF playoff debut for Canyon, while the Raiders played two CIF contests last season, so the experience factor is definitely on the side of Rowland.

Royal Oak at Calexico, 8 p.m.

Playoffs for Royal Oak High aren't news. The Romans have gone each of the past four years with short-lived post-season success.

This year, unlike the past two, R.O. enters the first round of CIF 2-A action as a second place entry against Calexico tonight at 8 p.m. on the Desert League champions' home field.

The Romans (6-2-1 overall, 5-1-1 league) possess plenty of offensive threat in quarterback Jim Garcia and running backs Chris Tribble, Vince Nixon and Rick Hall.

Linebacker Frank Malicki (averaging 10-15 tackles per game) leads a defense that allows just 8.1 points per outing. The Romans, ranked 11th in the final 2-A poll, have a secondary that accounted for 24 thefts.

Calexico, ranked 13th, was unbeaten in five league outings and wound up 8-1 on the season.

Pomona teams seek Pop Warner crowns

Pairings have been set for this weekend's Pop Warner "showdown Sunday".

The Mt. Baldy Conference's Championship Bowl Sunday will determine the league champs in the Jr. Pee Wee, Pee Wee and Midget divisions of local Pop Warner youth football action.

Three games will be played at Chaffey High's Graber Field, with the Pee Wee showdown between the Pomona Bruins and the Ontario Packers kicking off the day's action at 1 p.m.

The Bruins beat the Packers last year for the Pee Wee crown so this rematch should be a hotly contested battle.

Following the Pee Wee championship, the Jr. Pee Wees clash at 3 p.m.

It will be an all-Fontana final in Jr. Pee Wee play, as the Fontana Hawks meet the Fontana Falcons. The Hawks beat the San Dimas-La Verne Tartars, 12-0, in a special playoff game last Sunday to reach Championship Bowl competition.

The final game Sunday will be between the Midget division titlists at 4:30 p.m. In this contest the Pomona Bengals tackle the undefeated Fontana Bucks.

Gates open Sunday at Graber Field at 11 p.m. Championship Bowl ceremonies begin at 12 noon. The conference is asking for a $1 donation from adults attending Sunday's action, while children under 14 will be admitted free of charge.

Lugo, Walnut in Frosh Bowl

Freshman football teams from Don Lugo and Walnut highs will meet in what has been dubbed the Frosh Bowl Saturday night at Chino High. Kickoff is scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Lugo (8-1) tied for the San Antonio League championship with the Montclair frosh. Walnut (9-0) is the Hacienda League champion.

The game was originally approved by the CIF. But San Antonio League principals nixed the contest early this week and then reversed themselves.

Gil Duenas, Lugo's leading rusher, will not be able to play in the game due to injury according to coach John Monger. Duenas rushed for 750 yards before he was hurt.

Walnut, coached by Jack Isett, outscored its opponents, 255-77, during its record season. Tailback Mario Flores leads the attack with more than 1,000 yards. Pat Flaherty and Steve Green alternate at quarterback while linebackers David Brownen and Mario Viescaes lead the defense.

Basketball sign-ups extended in La Verne

Registration for a boys' basketball league in La Verne has been extended until December 14, according to the La Verne Jaycees, sponsors of the loop.

Boys, ages 9-14, wishing to participate in the league can register at the All-Star Sporting Goods store, 2336 "D" Street, in La Verne. Additional information can be obtained by calling Bob Riedy at (714) 593-7632 or John Bruiniers at (714) 593-2993.

Buckeye fans are frantic

By United Press International

The definition of a "big game" can't always be determined by what transpires on the field.

In some cases, the setting can be even bigger than the reality of combat.

Such a scene will take place at Columbus, Ohio, Saturday when Ohio State hosts Michigan in what may be the game of the year — both on the field and off. It is being preceded by such a frantic scramble for tickets that one hopeful Ohio State entrepreneur placed aprice of $10,000 on a pair of seats and another coed actually sold three tickets for $600.

At whatever price they pay, there will be a noisy, holiday-high crowd of 86,000 fans in attendance, plus untold millions of freeloaders who will watch on television. In addition to a highly-prized victory, at stake for Michigan and Ohio State will be the Big Ten Conference championship and a Rose Bowl berth.

It will be difficult for the combatants to live up to the pre-game hysterics in terms of excitement, but if two teams are capable of putting on such a show, it is Ohio State and Michigan. Both clubs are loaded with talent, the incentive is there and the emotion is at a fever-high pitch

The Wolverines, still steaming over last year's decision by the Big 10 to bypass them in favor of Ohio State as the conference representative to the Rose Bowl, carry a 10-0 record into their season finale and the No. 2 position in the national rankings.

The Buckeyes are ranked third with a 9-1 record, the loss coming in a highly controversial 19-13 decision to Michigan State two weeks ago. Ohio State, with the home field advantage, has been listed as an eight-point favorite, but the two rival coaches discount the spread.

"There's no such thing as an underdog in this game," said Michigan coach Bo Schembechler, and Woody Hayes of Ohio State responded, "You and I both know that it's going to be a tossup out there."

Top-ranked Alabama is idle this week in preparation for next Friday's donnybrook with sixth-ranked Auburn, but several other traditional rivalries with and bowl berths will be decided on the final big weekend of the 1974 college football season.

At Los Angeles, seventh-ranked Southern California is a 15-point favorite over UCLA, tied for No. 17 in the ratings, with the Pacific Eight crown and the host role in the Rose Bowl at stake. This game also will be televised nationally.

The Big Eight Conference title will be decided at Lincoln, Neb., with fifth-ranked Nebraska hosting unbeaten Oklahoma. The Sooners, who are unranked and unable to go to a post-season bowl because of their probationary status, are favored by 14 points.

Elsewhere, unbeaten Yale is 5½ point favorite at Harvard in a battle for the Ivy League crown, Tennessee is a 1½ point pick at home over Kentucky in their Liberty Bowl duel, Purdue is 4½ points at home over Indiana, Illinois is 13½ points at home over Northwestern, Mississippi State is 7½ at home over Mississippi, Oregon State is 11 at home over Oregon, Washington is picked by 1½ points at Washington State, and California is 3½ at home over Stanford.

Rams seek to bounce back by knocking off Minnesota

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Stunned by the New Orleans Saints last weekend, the Los Angeles Rams seek to bounce back against the Minnesota Vikings Sunday in a game that could mean a divisional championship for each team.

Both the Rams and the Vikings are 7-3 in their division races. The Rams have a three-game lead in the National Football Conference's Western Division while the Vikings hold a two-game edge in the NFC Central.

A Ram win Sunday plus a New Orleans loss to Pittsburgh would bring Los Angeles its second straight NFC West title.

A Minnesota victory coupled with a Detroit loss to Chicago and a Green Bay win over San Diego would bring the NFC Central crown to the Vikings again.

While the Rams were being unceremoniously dumped at New Orleans 20-7 last weekend, the Vikings also were upset, bowing 19-7 to Green Bay.

A year ago, the Rams compiled a 12-2 regular season record. One of the losses came at Minnesota 10-9.

Ram Coach Chuck Knox pointed out his team has lost 12 fumbles and had 11 passes intercepted for 23 turnovers in its first 10 games compared to just three fumbles and 12 pass interceptions against opponents.

"I can't explain the difference," said Knox. "I know a good football team forces turnovers to happen. And I know we're a good football team."

The Rams have been a much criticized team this year although their defense has been the best in the NFL (120 points given up) and Lawrence McCutcheon is the league's No. 1 rusher (887 yards).

"I think the fans expected us to be a super team after what we did last year," he said. "And when we don't play super, they're not satisfied."

In five games as Los Angeles' starting quarterback, James Harris is 4-1. Knox did not blame him for the Rams' lackluster offensive showing last weekend.

Harris is in his sixth pro season but had started only three NFL games before Knox decided to move him ahead of John Hadl, last year's NFC Player of the Year, the week of a game with San Francisco here Oct. 20. Hadl was swapped the following week to Green Bay for five draft choices.

"Every game has been a big test for him," said Knox, "not only being relatively inexperienced but playing for a contender. All this has been thrust upon him."

In Minnesota, Harris and the Rams face the NFL's No. 2 defensive team (141 points allowed).

Hit by old age and injuries, the Vikings have made eight starting lineup changes on offense and defense since losing 24-7 to Miami in Super Bowl VIII last Jan. 13.

The Vikings lead the series with the Rams 12-6-1 and Fran Tarkenton has a 9-4-1 mark against Los Angeles as Minnesota's quarterback.

Sports news in brief

ATHENS, Ga. (UPI) — The Georgia Bulldogs have officially accepted a berth in tie Tangerine Boowl in Orlando, Fla., on Dec. 12, when they will battle 12th-ranked Miami of Ohio.

The University Athletic Board Thursday approved the Bulldogs' participation in the bowl.

Miami, which had a 9-0-1 record in a season marred only by a tie with Purdue, accepted its Tangerine Bowl berth earlier.

BOSTON (UPI) — As expected, the Boston Celtics have released second year forward Steve Downing to make room on their roster for all-star center Dave Cowens.

Cowens, out since pre-season with a broken bone in his right foot, could see action in Friday night's game with the Phoenix Suns.

DENTON, Tex. (UPI) — The North Texas State Board of Regents said it would decide today if the school, a 16-year member of the Missouri Valley Conference, will remove itself from the league.

The faculty athletic committee voted unanimously Thursday to withdraw.

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI) — Marvin Barnes, star rookie center of the Spirits of St. Louis American Basketball Association team who mysteriously disappeared earlier this week, is talking with a business agent in Dayton, it was reported today.

The Cincinnati Enquirer reported that Barnes was at a motel here talking with Marshall Boyer about contract problems.

Barnes had last been seen in New York City Wednesday prior to the Spirits-New York Nets game.

DENVER (UPI) — Floyd Little, Denver Bronco running back and a law student at Denver University, will receive the 1974 Human Relations citation from the American Jewish Committee, officials said Thursday.

Little was cited for his community service, including work with Denver police and youth-oriented agencies in antidrug programs.

VANCOUVER (UPI) — Edmonton Eskimos quarterback Tom Wilkinson was named Thursday the most valuable player in the Canadian Football League. Wilkinson will lead the Eskimos into the Grey Cup game here Sunday against the Montreal Alouettes.

Montreal speedster Johnny Rogers, a former Heisman Trophy winner at the University of Nebraska, was runnerup.

Wilkinson, a graduate of the University of Wyoming, completed 173 of 262 passes during the regular season for 2,169 yards and 13 touchdowns. He also ran for one TD.

Three Sun stars bypass playoffs

It was revealed during the game that Hainlen had an injured back and was in traction in the hospital until Thursday afternoon.

His first punt was a 30-yarder that was returned 13 yards. The Hawaiians went on to score a field goal. Hainlen's second effort went 34 yards but was run back 27. It took only three plays for Randy Johnson to get the Hawaiians their second touchdown.

Johnson, one of 20 NFL veterans that joined the Hawaiians midway through the season, completed 14 of 24 passes for 148 yards and two touchdowns.

Tim Delaney, who once starred for Chino High and MSAC, caught five passes for 40 yards. But the receiver that broke the Sun hearts was rookie John Kelsey, a 6-6, 240-pound tight end from Missouri.

Kelsey grabbed six passes for 80 yards and a touchdown.

"They were too much for us," admitted coach Tom Fears. "We were all crippled up. Things had to go just right for us and they didn't."

Fears and his players all agreed that the constant changing of the playoff structure (from four teams to six, then eight, then three and finally six again) resulted in disillusionment.

"The uncertainty affected us tremendously," said Fears. "We had to prepare for three different teams. But we probably couldn't have beaten any of the three we were so crippled up."

Adams, who completed 11 of 21 passes for only 89 yards, blamed it on two things. "You can go back to the game where we clinched the division title (Oct. 16)," he said. "Right after that they expanded the playoffs to six and then eight teams. We'd worked hard all season to get in the playoffs and then they stick a lot of losers in too."

"There also should have been a rule against letting all those NFL veterans in after the season started," he continued. "We're mostly a rookie team and Hawaii became a veteran team in mid season."

Among the 20 NFL vets in addition to Randy Johnson were wide receiver John Isenbarger (49ers), starting offensive linemen John Wilbur (Redskins) and Cornelius Johnson (Skins), defensive backs Jim Detweiler (Cardinals), Willie Williams (Giants), and Otto Brown (Giants), and linebackers Jim Sniadecki, (49ers), and Adrian Young (Eagles and Bears).

All were starters Thursday night.

Roller, who had no lateral movement because of his injury, but played, was the most frustrated.

"We could have kept on (winning)," he said bitterly. "But they kept changing the playoffs and we kept hearing about all the troubles other clubs were having. We missed paychecks twice and others were late . . . that has to affect you . . . . you can't concentrate in a situation like that."

Players and coaches alike voiced confidence that next year, the league would be stronger and things will be better.

Hopefully, there will be a next year. Although Donald Regan was named Commissioner after Gary Davison's ouster, the WFL has obviously been directionless since then. With all the chaotic changes in playoffs and contradicting statements, Regan has been silent and not one statement has been issued by him.

The way things are now, any change would be an improvement.

'Pack cagers play faculty

Claremont High will give its basketball fans a preview of the season with the annual faculty-varsity game Wednesday night at the school's gymnasium.

Coach Jack Smith's varsity will play the younger faculty members at 8 p.m. following a junior varsity-older faculty contest at 6 p.m. and a wrestling exhibition between games.

Tickets, costing $1 for adults and 50 cents for students, are available from the Associated Student Body office or at the door. Proceeds will be used for the basketball program.

Blazers find angel to end club's debts

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — With a long-awaited "angel" on the sidelines, the Florida Blazers will get another shot at the Memphis Southmen and a chance to make sports history in the first World Bowl.

The World Football League's East Division champs whipped the Philadelphia Bell 18-3 in a playoff game in the Tangerine Bowl Thursday night while their front office was scoring an even bigger victory at the bank.

Robert D. Prentice, 58, an investment banker from Cocoa Beach, Fla., arrived at the game with a check for $1.5 million to pay the team's debts and 12 weeks in back pay. He said he was representing a group ready to pump $4 million into the franchise.

The Blazers, with a 14-6 record during the regular season, thus got a new lease on life, a lift they will need to beat the Southmen, the winners in two previous encounters at 26-18 and 25-13. The winner gets a berth in the first World Bowl.

Florida Coach Jack Pardee said "everybody came to play" against the Bell, despite pre-game grumbling about the confused playoffs and questionable payoffs.

The big plays, he said, were the turnovers, notably when safety Ricky Harris scooped up Claude Watts' fumble early in the game and raced 30 yards for the Blazers' first touchdown.

Later, Bob Davis hit rookie Greg Latta with a 54-yard touchdown pass and Dave Strock kicked a 24-yard field goal.

Philadelphia's only score came on a 37-yard field goal by Jerry Warren, who had missed a 27-yarder in the first quarter.

Strock also missed kicks of 48 and 38 yards and had one blocked from 45 yards out.

Watts was the game's leading ground gainer with 131 yards on 21 carries, far outdistancing Florida's Tommy Reamon, the league's leading rusher, who was held to 30 yards in 17 attempts.

Davis connected on only 6-of-19 passes for 113 yards and the one touchdown while Philadelphia's King Corcoran hit 11-of-32 for 127 yards.

Prentice, who appeared before gametime to present his check, said the other investors were Robert J. Hook, one of his business partners, and Mrs. Nancy Taylor of Cocoa Beach and her two sons—both college students.

Prentice denied reports that Arab oil money was being used to bail out the Blazers.

Riedel gains share of prep derby crown

Chino High running back Rick Riedel finished in a tie for the high school scoring derby title this year, and didn't end up in third place as previously reported.

Riedel, with a touchdown run against Garey last weekend, tied with Rowland High quarterback Flavio Garcia for the individual scoring title with a total of 54 points for the season — both with nine touchdowns.

Charter Oak's Bill Darrell finished third in the scoring standings, while Webb School's Doug McCowan wrapped up fourth place.

Griffifth faces Antuofermo in tough test

NEW YORK (UPI) — Emile Griffith, 35 years old, meets Vito Antuofermo, 22, tonight in a 10-round middleweight bout at Madison Square Garden, which is far more important for the former champion to win than for his young Italian opponent.

Antuofermo's future is still waiting, but to many, Griffith's brilliant record—80 victories in 97 fights and five world titles— is coming to a close.

Yet Griffith is a slight favorite over the rising young native of Bari, whose only loss in 27 bouts came on a cut eye in a match he was winning before his injury.

A win over Antuofermo would hardly add much lustre to Griffith in his quest for one more shots at the title now owned by Carlos Monzon, but the Virgin Islander is firmly convinced he can be as good as he once was. Griffith is the "gate keeper" of the division, and as such can stem Vito's drive to the top.

But a defeat would only delay Antuofermo, and the experience of meeting the likes of Griffith should only prove of value to him in future matches.

Another young middleweight, Mike Rossman of Turnersville, N.J., puts his unbeaten record on the line against undefeated Johnny Pinney of Springfield, Mo., in the semifinal eight rounder. Rossman, 19, is ineligble because of his age to fight 10 rounders.

Tiger poloists face tough foe

Chaffey High's water polo team faces rugged assignment this afternoon in the CIF playoffs with it faces defending champion Sunny Hills in Fullerton.

The Tigers, coached by George Harris, compiled a 15-3 record and were a perfect 6-0 in Citrus Belt League action. Among the wins was a school-recrod 39-4 pounding of Pacific.

Dave Earwood was the Tigers' top scorer during the season with 58 goals. Scott Schultze was the goalie while Mark Lucas and Mike Adams were considered the top all-around players.

Signs are there that Thomas will be leaving Washington

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Duane Thomas seems to have had it with the Washington Redskins.

Signs are visible that coach George Allen has become disenchanted with the moody running back who three years ago was voted the most valuable player in the Dallas Cowboy Super Bowl victory over Miami.

The most significant tipoff to Thomas' status came last Sunday when the Redskins were sorely strapped for running backs in their 28-21 victory over the Cowboys in a "must" game.

When starter Moses Denson was knocked groggy in the second period, Allen turned to third stringer Charlie Evans who had carried only three times for two yards in the previous nine Redskin outings. Thomas sat unsummoned on the bench and saw no action whatsoever.

Evans responded with a team rushing high of 42 yards in 15 carries, including a six-yard touchdown burst, and is expected to see some action when the Redskins face the Philadelphia Eagles Sunday.

In addition, Allen this week signed on Doug Cunningham from the San Francisco 49ers, mainly for use on specialty teams. Allen follows a strict policy of never discussing Thomas and Thomas in turn refuses to talk to newsmen.

Since coming to Washington last year after virtually sitting out a season while revolving from the Cowboys to the New England Patriots to the San Diego Chargers Thomas has seen limited service as a replacement for Larry Brown.

In 1973, he carried 32 times for 95 yards and a starting spot appeared open for him when Charley Harraway, Brown's blocking running mate, jumped to the World Football League. But Thomas became involved in a scuffle with an assistant coach at training camp and Larry Smith, a newcomer from Los Angeles, began the season as the other starting back.

Smith then was sidelined with a broken ankle but Denson moved in as the starter.

Thonmas has twice opened for the Redskins as a replacement for a physically subpar Brown. In his first start against St. Louis, he piled up 96 yards in a losing cause to register the highest Washington game total of the season.

He again started earlier this month against the Eagles at Philadelphia. Midway in the third quarter his statistics showed zero yards in seven carries, and Brown limped back into service.

The former West Texas State star now in his fifth year as a pro continues also to have offfield problems. Last week, the Chargers filed a claim in federal court for money advanced him during the period he was with San Diego but declined to play.

Allen said when he took on the Redskin coaching job "the future is now." Where it is with Duane Thomas is problematical.

Cal St. Fullerton blacks go on strike

FULLERTON, Calif. (UPI) — Most black athletes at Cal State Fullerton have gone on strike, claiming a double standard and a quota system, it was disclosed Thursday.

Morris Graves, an activities adviser, said approximately 82 per cent of the black athletes on campus attended a meeting Wednesday afternoon and gave Paul Pastor, physical education chairman, a list of grievances.

The Titans have about 15 black football players and only one showed up for practice Wednesday. The team finishes its season at UC Davis Saturday.

The lone black was defensive back Johnnie Brey of Lompoc, Calif., who said the walkout had been coming for some time.

"The idea was to let everyone know there was a problem," he said.

Graves reported:

"It's a two or three year period of grievances. Our primary focus is on football right now. We believe a double standard exists between black and white athletes and is used to evaluate and judge them in terms of performance on and off the field.

"One of the major grievances was that, particularly in football, the coaches stack up black athletes at one position. There is an unwritten quota system in terms of how many black athletes should be on the field at one time. There haven't been more than four at any one time."

Graves also met with football Coach Pete Yoder, who said he didn't know anything about any grievances and would not discuss any disciplinary action against players who failed to show up for practice.

"It comes to me totally unexpected," said Yoder.

Graves said the protesting black athletes want some positive action to correct the grievances.

"In the event nothing constructive happens, there will be no more black athletes on this campus until it is done," he said.

UCLA CAGERS GET TEST TONIGHT

LOS ANGELES — Another era begins tonight when UCLA head basketball Coach John Wooden sends his 1974-75 Bruin team onto the Pauley Pavilion floor for the first time against a strong Athletes in Action West team as a preview of the upcoming collegiate season, which opens next weekend.

Tipoff time will be 8 p.m.

Beginning his 27th year at UCLA, Wooden has expressed himself as "excited" about this relatively young Bruin team, which has only two seniors on the roster, starting Forward Dave Meyers, 6-8, who was third in both scoring and rebounding last year, and guard-forward Pete Trgovich, a part-time starter a year ago.

With both these returnees in the lineup for the first tipoff will be 7-1¼ Ralph Drollinger, the soft-shooting backup center for Bill Walton last Winter; 6-9¼ Rich Washington, the Portland, Ore., sophomore who has been looking good at forward; and Guard Andre McCarter, the 6-3 Philadelphia, Pa., junior.

Also in the running for a starting guard spot is sophomore Jim Spillane, 5-11, who might open against the AIA West in place of either Trgovich or McCarter.

Coach Jim King's AIA West team, which posted a very successful 25-11 record a year ago and won a regional AAU championship has an excellent group of six returnees from that team and a half dozen rookies that has the makings of one of the best amateur teams in the country.

Mike Hopwood, the 6-7 leading scorer and former Arizona State forward, along with former Valparaiso Star John Sears, also 6-7.

Dave Schneider, 6-10 former AIA East center, will give the Bruins a test in the front line. Some talented newcomers also are threatening to break into the lineup—the likes of guard Randy Allen, from Indiana University of Pennsylvania, Fresno State's 6-8 Charlie Bailey and guard Eldon Lawyer, a 6-2 star who was his team's defensive player of the year twice while at Oral Roberts University.

Monday was a day of good news with the return to practice of sophomore Forward Marques Johnson, the 6-6¼ part-time starter last year who contracted hepatitis the middle of last month and will obviously be slow rounding into form.

Bruin fans will probably get an early look at 5-11 Jim Spillane, the sharpshooting sophomore, who also has looked good in early drills, and Wilbert Olinde, the 6-6½ second year forward who has shown considerable improvement.

Among the returnees, Guard Gavin Smith has shown flashes of the talents that could make him an outstanding performer while Casey Corliss, after staying out of basketball for a year because of bad knees, has made a very good comeback to put himself into contention.

Among the newcomers, 6-11¼ Brett Vroman, the center from Provo, Utah, has been working behind Drollinger along with Washington, who operates at both forward and center.

Ray Townsend, the 6-1½ freshman guard from San Jose, has shown good shooting and quickness; and Marvin Thomas, the 6-5 All-City forward from Jordan Hi, has shown improvement after a slow start.

Coach Wooden, who opens the regular collegiate season against strong Wichita State and De Paul University at Pauley Pavilion on Friday and Saturday, Nov 29-30, goes into his 27th Bruin season with a record of 592 wins and 144 losses for a remarkable .804 winning percentage.

Williams will become NW Louisiana skipper

NATCHITOCHES, Louisiana (UPI) — Former successful high school coach A. L. Williams will take over the faltering Northwestern Louisiana University football program.

The university said Thursday Williams would move up from offensive coordinator to head coach immediately after the season finale against Southeastern Louisiana Saturday. He will succeed George Doherty who will keep the post of athletic director.

Doherty, a Northwestern defensive assistant for five years before becoming head coach in 1972, won Gulf South Conference coach of the year honors for guiding the Demons to an 8-2 record that season.

But his record slipped to 6-5 in 1973 and the Demons have lost all 10 of their games this season.

Doherty said he asked to be relieved of coaching responsibility and suggested Williams as his successor.

Williams joined the Northwestern staff during the summer after coaching Woodlawn High School of Shreveport to one state championship and a 6 4-25-2 record over eight years.

His star high school products were quarterbacks Terry Bradshaw and Joe Ferguson, who are now stars in the NFL.

Williams is a pass-oriented coach who revised Northwestern's offense and installed more pass plays this season.

U.S. faces Nicaragua for tournament title

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — It's the same old story in the World Amateur Baseball Tournament—either the United States or Nicaragua will be the champion.

That was assured Thursday when Nicaragua defeated Canada 5-4 and the U.S. handed Colombia a 6-2 loss That left the U.S. and Nicaragua the only unbeaten teams in the nine-nation tournament at 6-0.

Even though Nicaragua plays Colombia and the U.S. faces Canada in today's final day of the round robin competition, the U.S. and Nicaragua must replay an earlier 6-6, nine-inning tie to detrmine the champion. That playoff is scheduled for Saturday.

Last year at Nicaragua, the U.S. won the tournament, with Nicaragua finishing second.

In Thursday's other games, China overwhelmed South Africa 12-0 in a game called after eight innings because of the 10-run rule and Italy slipped past Puerto Rico 8-3.

The U.S. victory which eliminated Colombia, now 5-2, was its 16th without defeat in world competition. Last year, the U.S. won the title with a 100 record

Third baseman Doug Coon powered the U.S. to its victory with his second home run in two nights and third of the tournament.

Nicaragua had to score five runs in the last three innings to keep its title chance alive against Canada.

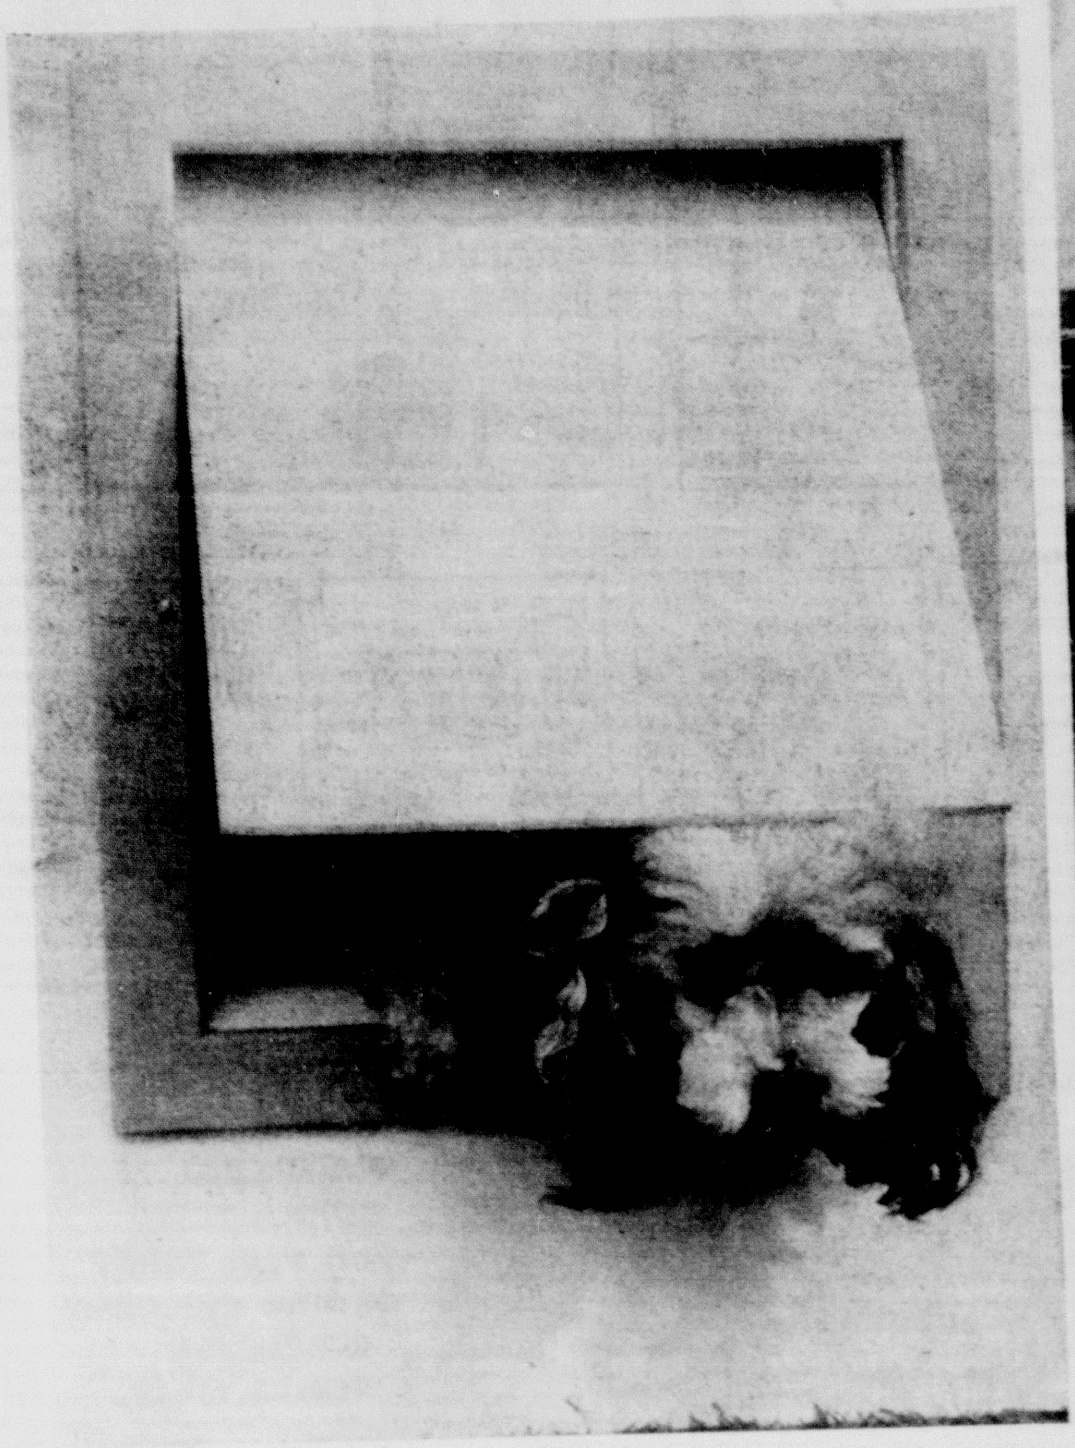
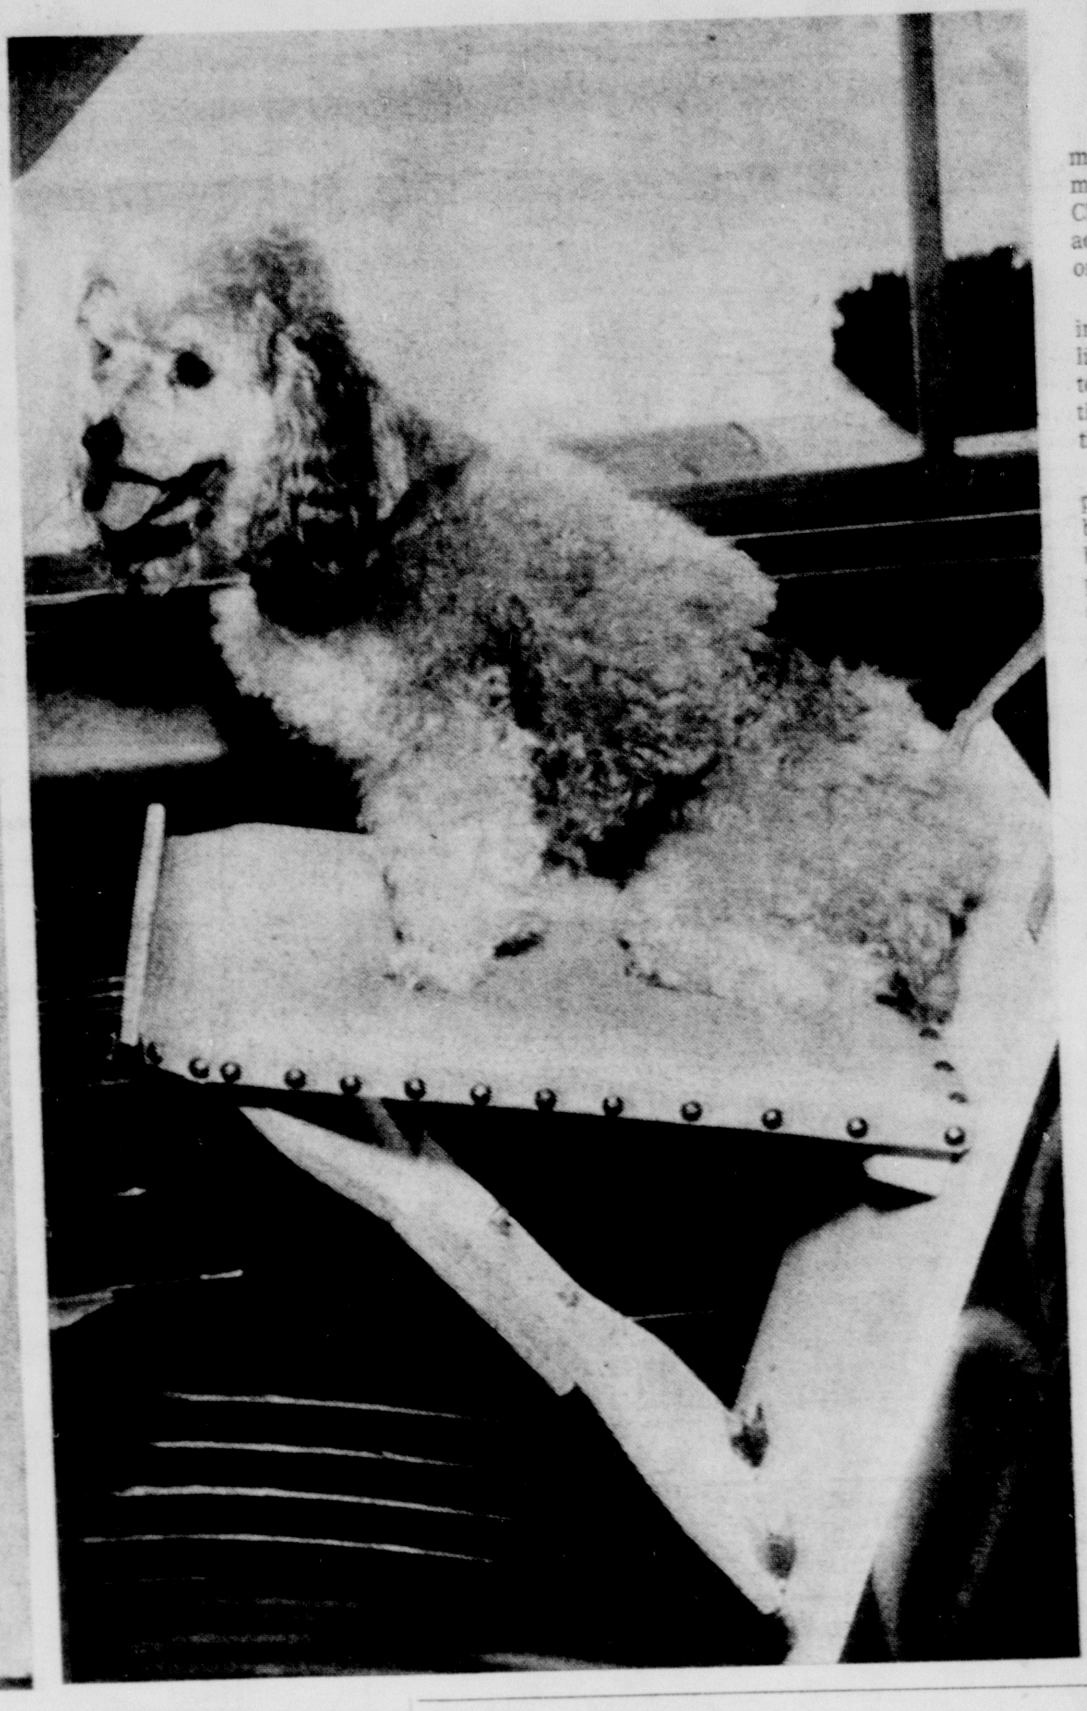
Progress-Bulletin Home and Garden





Planter is ideal gift

In these days of environmental consciousness, plants make an especially timely Christmas present. They can add life to a house, apartment or office.

Many plants can be grown indoors and some require so little care that you don't have to worry about whether or not the recipient has a green thumb.

When shopping for an appropriate plant to give, the buyer has two options; either buy a fully-grown potted plant, or purchase a pre-seeded planter that has not germinated and flowered. There are advantages to either.

A grown potted plant allows the recipient to immediately enjoy his gift while in its fully-developed state.

A pre-seeded planter, on the other hand, permits the recipient to nurture his gift and watch it grow and develop.

Pre-seeded indoor planters are small decorator planter boxes filled with a growing "medium". The medium contains all of the necessary nutrients to germinate and grow the seed which is also contained in the medium. All the recipient must do is add water and watch his gift bloom into life.

Because they are a lesson in nature, pre-seeded planters make fine educational gifts for children. They require much less care and space than an aquarium full of guppies or a cage full of hamsters.

A pre-seeded planter also is easier to wrap and place under the Christmas tree than a fully-grown plant. They are usually less expensive, too.

Gardener's checklist

Look for a Living Christmas tree now while the supply is good in nurseries. These may be kept in containers for use during future Holiday Seasons.

Artichokes, Asparagus and Rhubarb will be available in bare root form for planting this winter. Besides the food they produce, their ornamental qualities in the garden are a great assets.

Christmas Rose (Helleborus) is an excellent choice for cool weather bloom. Plant now and enjoy the blooms after New Year's Day.

Plant a cover of annuals such as Alyssum, Violas or Pansies over your beds of spring bulbs. They bloom with the bulbs, then keep blooming to provide continuous color in the garden.

Add seasonal color to bare spots in the garden with pots of blooming Chrysanthemums. Use an extra pot or two for color inside, too.

By STEVE ELLINGSON

pets just have to be man's riends. And here are two prac- ways to pamper your dog (or For years, we've been getting ters from readers who wanted a inging door for their pet. Some sent us a rough drawing on how uild a car seat for small animals. we put our designers to work. Re- lt? Two ideas for the price of one!

When you come to think of it, re's probably no more practical oject for a pet owner than a swing- ng door. Here's the perfect way to ive pets more independence and ourself more freedom. Once trained, hey'll use it when they need . . . without asking you. Of urse, if you don't want them out at rtain times, or if you want to lock when away from the house, you n latch it. The door swings both inward and outward. The weather is kept out by a magnetic catch that holds the door closed.

With this car seat, your pet has an ideal observation platform, which eliminates the temptation to disturb other passengers by climbing on and over their laps. This unique invention is designed to be attached to the back of a car seat with either ordinary luggage straps or u-shaped hanger. It can be upholstered to give your friend more comfort.

To order Pattern No. 540, (which includes the full-size drawings for both the Pet Swinging Door and Car Seat) simply send $1.50 by cash, check or money order (add 25c for postage and handling or 50c for airmail to: Steve Ellingson, Pomona Progress-Bulletin Pattern Dept., P. LARRY AYERS

LARRY AYERS, of Professional Landscape of Upland, recently won first place honors for his company's work in landscaping Yorba Linda Knolls, an Orange County large, multi-family development. The award was made recently at the third annual awards banquet of the San Gabriel Chapter of California Landscape Contractors Assn. Ayers' company also took second place honors in the large and small model home divisions.

Faucets spruce up kitchen

A good way to spruce up your bathroom or kitchen is with new "brass." You also get the convenience that comes with up-to-date equipment. Here's what's new in plumbing brass, according to the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau:

Faucet with a hose and thumb-controlled spray attachment for rinsing dishes and vegetables.

—Faucet with both an aerated stream and a spray flow. The user raises or lowers a "former" at the end of the spout to get the desired flow. Water can be directed anywhere because the faucet has both an up-down swing and a full-circle swivel action.

—Aerated showerhead with a swivel arm that makes it possible to shower without getting your head wet. The arm can be adjusted for bathers of varying heights.

—A body or shampoo spray on a flexible stainless steel hose. It can be attached to an existing shower arm or to the tub spout. It's recommended for invalids who can't take conventional baths or showers.

—Automatic temperature controls for showers and tubs that eliminate sudden surges of hot or cold water.

Modern plumbing brass not only is efficient, it's also handsome and can add a note of high-fashion to a bathroom or kitchen. In selecting such equipment, remember that it takes hard use, so it pays to buy the very best.

Start at top

Insulation in the ceiling (attic floor) of a home does the most good. Up to 25 per cent of winter heat loss and 40 per cent of summer heat gain takes place through the ceiling. Insulating the ceiling with mineral wool blankets usually is a simple do-it-yourself job.

Cracks costly

The National Bureau of Standards has estimated that in a moderate climate a ¼-inch crack under a 3-foot-wide door leading to an attic lets $4.50 worth of heat escape per winter.

Jai alai (pronounced HIGH uh LIE) is a game similar to handball, except that the players catch a small hard rubber ball with long, basketlike cestas and hurl it against the wall at a very high speed.

Jai alai is often called the fastest game in the world. It requires much speed and strength.

The game is played on a large court with high walls on three sides.

The skill of the game lies in throwing the ball, called a pelota, against the front wall to make it rebound in such a way that the opponent will not be able to catch it and return it before it has bounced more than once.

In a jai alai game, the ball sometimes reaches a speed of 150 miles an hour.

In the United States, jai alai is played mostly in Florida. The game is also popular in Mexico, Cuba, and the Philippine Islands.

In Spain, where the game originated, jai alai is called "pelota."

Here's wonderful news! A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

SPECIAL CHRISTMAS GIFT WRAP

That wild hectic time of Christmas shopping and preparation is about on us again. It seems that things get busier and more commercial each year. We would like to suggest that you evaluate this year's plans for Christmas preparation and plan ahead so that you can be ready a week or so earlier this year. Then relax and enjoy your friends and family, enjoy the special sights, sounds, and smells of the season and concentrate on helping others feel the true spirit of good will that Christmas should bring.

Indian Hill Village is grateful to all its friends and hopes they can plan ahead to enjoy the yuletide season. To help you and to show our special Christmas thanks, Indian Hill Village Merchants will Christmas gift wrap any gifts you buy in our stores during the month of November. Let us help you find those special gifts and we will wrap them for a minimal charge of 10c.

Among all the hustle and bustle of the season, we pledge to keep the true spirit of Christmas at Indian Hill Village this season and hope we can help you make Christmas 1974 one you'll always remember.

Look for our booth in the Village.

THE "MODEL ETTS" WAY HELPS CURB YOUR APPETITE
HELPS YOU LOSE THAT EXTRA WEIGHT
■ NO CALORIE COUNTING! ■ NO EXERCISES!
■ NO SPECIAL DIETS!

Thanks to a group of New York doctors, you can now lose pounds of ugly fat without going on any special diet, without cutting out any special foods.

HELPS REDUCE HUNGRY MOMENTS

These New York doctors discovered a food adjuvant called "MODEL ETTS."

"Model-etts" does remarkable things. It helps you cut down your caloric intake by a natural automatic curbing of the appetite and of the desire for foods, resulting automatically in a reduced intake of food.

Before "Model-etts" was offered to you, it was tested clinically by the doctors on a large group of non glandular overweight men and women.

The doctors carefully checked results, and here is what they found:

1. Weight losses of 6 to 20 pounds without any ill effects whatsoever.
2. 98% of the men and women who used "Model-etts" lost weight.

"Model-etts" is absolutely safe. It is a food adjuvant — not a drug.

So, start today to shed those unwanted pounds and inches. If your condition is glandular or organic, see your doctor. "Model-etts" may help you stay on the diet your doctor recommends. Ask him about it.

You can get a full month's supply of "Model-etts" for $3.00 on money back guarantee. In clinical tests, "Model-etts" was 98% successful. "Model-etts" may not be 100% successful in all cases, but you take no risk in trying "Model-etts" on our Money Back Guarantee.

Come in General Nutrition to get "MODEL ETTS." The sooner you start, the sooner you may have the loss of weight you yearn for.

Sounds too good to be true, but it is true!

How Model-etts Curbs Your Appetite

In the opinion of the supervising physician, based on the average of weight losses in the clinical tests, his calculations showed that 1 Model-etts Wafer has the hunger satisfying capacity of 1 pound boiled potatoes or 4 eggs or 5 slices of white bread, yet it contains only 16 calories.
